BROTHER OF EX-CABINET OFFICIAL ACCUSED

Refusal to Testify at Oil Inquiry Causes Drastic Action

WASHINGTON, April 26.—The United States Senate this afternoon ordered the arrest of Mel S. Daugherty, brother of the former attorney general, as a result of his defiant refusal to testify before the Wheeler-Brookhart committee either here or at Washington Courthouse, Ohio.

Daugherty will be arrested by the sergeant at arms of the Senate and held in custody until he obeys subpoenas issued by the committee.

Daugherty's arrest was ordered under terms of a resolution offered by Senator Brookhart, Republican, of Iowa, chairman of the committee, and passed by the Senate.

The committee recommended this procedure as an alternative to institution of contempt proceedings because of his refusal to testify at the senatorial investigation of the department of justice.

Daugherty, however, may yet face prosecution on contempt charges.

Under the terms of the resolution, Daugherty will be arrested "wherever he is" and brought before the "bar of the Senate" for arraignment.

If he again refuses to testify in the open Senate he will be remanded to the custody of the sergeant-at-arms and held in confinement until he does comply with the committee's demands.

FIRE WIPES OUT THREE STEAMERS

Crew of Burning Vessel Are Roused by Auto Horns As Flames Near

NEW YORK, April 26.—The excursion steam boat Grand Republic and two other vessels were totally destroyed in a spectacular fire early today which attracted 22,000 persons to the shore of the Hudson river off 157th street.

Thirty employees of the McAlister Steamboat company, which owned the vessels, were asleep in the Grand Republic and were aroused by the honking of automobiles on Riverside drive.

Five were severely burned before they were rescued.

The Grand Republic was the sister ship of the General Slocum, which was burned in the Easter river twenty years ago with a loss of one thousand lives.

For Chairman

THEODORE E. BURTON of Ohio, chosen for temporary chairman of the Republican national convention.

WASHINGTON, April 26.—Representative Theodore E. Burton of Ohio was selected today by President Coolidge and his campaign managers to serve as temporary chairman of the Republican national convention in Cleveland in June.

The sub-committee, which meets in Cleveland next Monday, has among its chief tasks the duty of naming the temporary chairman of the convention and it will make short work of ratifying the president's choice of Congressman Burton.

The selection of the permanent chairman will be decided by the convention itself, but it is not expected that Burton will hold both posts.

TWO ANGELS ARE FINED, SUSPENDED

Whaley and Walters Argue With Umpire; Williams Fixes Penalties

LOS ANGELES, April 26.—Suspensions for one day and fines of $10 each were hung on Outfielder Bill Whaley and Pitcher Johnny Walters of the Los Angeles club today by Harry Williams, president of the Coast league, for arguing with an umpire about a strike or two, during the game yesterday in Oakland, it was announced.

Figures revealed today showed the attendance for the first two weeks of the baseball season this year reached 227,400, in comparison with 185,487 during the same period in 1923.

Fresh Outbreaks of Plague Are Reported

LOS ANGELES, April 26.—Two new outbreaks of the foot and mouth disease were reported to the sheriff's office here during the last twenty-four hours, one being on the Tweedy ranch on Cudahy avenue and the other at the Terminal Island hog ranch which is said to use city garbage for feed.

JUNIOR WINS ORATORICAL CONTEST

Elsie Forsythe Gets First Prize; Line of March Goes to Freshmen

Elsie Forsythe last night won the annual oratorical contest of the Glendale Union High school.

The freshmen made good their threat to spring a surprise at the contest, held at the Broadway High school auditorium, capturing the line of march contest with their tableau representing the nations of the world placing wreaths of tribute on the tomb of Woodrow Wilson.

Juniors Break Record
The juniors also upset all calculations of the dopesters, annexing first honors in the oratorical contest itself, with a stirring address by Elsie Forsythe on "Conservation of Natural Resources." In sixteen unbroken years of contesting for the $20 in gold that goes with this award, the juniors have been successful but once before, while the seniors have won the contest eleven times and the sophomores three times. Jeannie Boring of the class of 1914, who won this contest in 1923, is the junior sharing honors with Miss Forsythe for last night's triumph.

The freshmen, too, have good reason to be proud of their victory. It is not always those who blow their horn the loudest who take home the prize, and the sophomores were laying heavy odds against the freshmen, while the haughty juniors were certain of victory, having won the line of march contest a majority of the sixteen times.

Prize to Senior
Another winner in last night's memorable affair was Edith Sperry, a senior, awarded the prize for the best command of English. This prize is a significant one, points out Miss Jennie Freeman, head of the G. U. H. S. English department, as the winner is voted for on merit alone, by three separate bodies—the senior class, the faculty and the cabinet.

Francis M. Read, winner of the oratorical contest in 1921, when he was a senior, presided over last night's program, introducing the various speakers and acting as chairman of the evening. He was assisted by the following committee:

Chairman, Paul Cunningham, secretary of debating and oratory.

WYOMING MODIFIES QUARANTINE RULES

SACRAMENTO, April 26.—Marking the first break in the quarantine ring on California products by other states as a result of the foot and mouth disease, Wyoming today notified Dr. U. G. Houck, head of the federal forces, that it had modified its quarantine against California to conform with regulations adopted at the Salt Lake conference of western states quarantine officers. Wyoming will permit shipments of California fruits and other products of the soil from outside quarantined areas to enter the state under the new regulations.

Oil King's Toupees Made In Southern California Plant

LOS ANGELES, April 26.—Among the many manufactured articles, labeled "Los Angeles Made" there is one not yet catalogued. It is John D. Rockefeller's wig supply. William Hepner, internationally known as the most celebrated wig maker in the world, has been making Mr. Rockefeller's wigs for the last twenty-five years, and now that the main Hepner hair establishment is located in Los Angeles, wigs are the latest export.

Mr. Hepner has just leased ground for an establishment de luxe to be built in Hollywood, and expects this branch to take care of the moving picture stars, many of whom require several hair dresses a day while acting, and who declare that his downtown shop is too far to get service between acts.

As many of the stars are having their long and luxuriant tresses bobbed now, and as wigs are made from the shorn locks from other heads, New York is wondering whose hair John D. is wearing now. Perhaps Nazi-mov's, perhaps Claire Windsor's or maybe Helene Chadwick's.

INVESTMENT OF $100,000 PROPOSED

Improvement Depends on Establishment of New Commercial Zone

George F. Harris, Los Angeles capitalist, proposes to spend more than $100,000 in improvements on his property in the vicinity of Doran street and Columbus avenue.

Sketches and plans of the apartment houses, stores and courts he proposes to erect on his property to the west and north of the Doran street school, at Doran and Columbus, were submitted to the City Planning Commission last night by Harris, and, after going over the different phases of the proposition, the commissioners decided to hold a public hearing on the matter Friday night, May 2, at 8 o'clock.

Seeks Zone Law
Mr. Harris' investment, which will represent an amount in excess of $100,000, is contingent upon the classification of the property in question as a commercial zone.

Commissioners T. W. Watson, P. J. Hayselden, J. H. Randall, S. E. Kinch and Harry Hague were present at the meeting. Mr. Harris owns the property abutting the school land on the corner. It is in the shape of an "L," with frontage both on Doran street and Columbus.

Commission's Stand
In presenting his petition asking that the classification of his holding be changed from residential to commercial, he was informed by the commissioners that if he was sincere in his intentions to make an improvement according to the plans submitted, he would get the support of the commission, but if the change was proposed for any other reason they would veto it right from the start.

The sketches submitted by Mr. Harris call for a three-story apartment and store building north of the school, fronting on Columbus avenue, with two-story courts on the remaining lots. He plans, he stated, to erect one of the most modern buildings in Southern California, with garages, flower gardens and all other up-to-date features.

Sentiment of People
Owners of abutting property will have a chance to express their opinion on the proposed improvement at the open meeting next Friday night. Secretary Hayselden intimated this morning that the commissioners would undoubtedly be influenced to a large extent in their recommendations to the City Council by the sentiment of the people in that section of the city. The commissioners decided unanimously to recommend to the City Council that they pass a resolution providing that hereafter the city of Glendale will not install water pipes or meters on any courts, streets, alleys or property which has not been deeded to and is owned by the city of Glendale or the county of Los Angeles.

Public Hearing
At the verbal request of several parties the commission will hold a public hearing next Friday night, May 2, on the widening of Cerritos avenue from San Fernando road to Gardena avenue. It is claimed that at night the number of cars parked in this street by persons who are attending nearby theatres makes traffic to the Southern Pacific depot very congested. As several trains stop in Glendale between 7 o'clock and 10 o'clock, the commissioners realize the situation, the state, but desire to hear from the property owners affected before taking any action.

Governor Richardson Says Most Of Quarantine Rules 'Ridiculous And Illegal'

LOS ANGELES, April 25.—Characterizing most of the hoof and mouth disease quarantine regulations imposed by supervisors of California counties as "ridiculous and illegal," Governor Friend W. Richardson, upon his arrival here today issued an appeal to the people of the state to keep cool and unexcited during the epidemic.

"There is no cause for alarm," the governor said. "The state and federal authorities are working in close harmony to stamp out the plague and I am confident their efforts will be successful within a short time."

"Every effort should be made to prevent the spread of the hoof and mouth disease, but most of the restrictions on travel imposed by the boards of supervisors are ridiculous and illegal," declared Richardson.

During the morning the governor conferred with Governor

FUMIGATION TAX AT COUNTY LINE

San Diego Collecting Fee From Motorists and Train Passengers

ANAHEIM, April 26.—San Diego county has placed a fee today on all motorists and railroad passengers, to cover the cost of fumigation at the Orange county line, it was learned this morning when motorists complained to local officers.

Cars going into San Diego county are charged $2.50 for fumigation, which takes several hours and will make impossible much Sunday travel for pleasure. People riding on the Santa Fe and the bus lines are forced to submit to fumigation, which costs $1.

Travelers were agitated this morning at the latest move in combating the foot-and-mouth disease among cattle by charging the individual. Officials of the Santa Fe verify the reports of passenger fumigation.

SET NEW RECORD IN REGISTRATION

Primary Election Will See Biggest Vote Known In State, Is Belief

SACRAMENTO, April 26.—The registration for the May presidential primary exceeds the registration for any other primary in the history of the state, it was announced today by Secretary of State Frank C. Jordan.

Total registration was 1,499,595, divided as follows: Republicans, 1,012,701; Democrats, 339,300; socialists, 17,888; prohibitionists, 18,281; declined to state 110,517; miscellaneous, 1108.

One outstanding feature of the registration was that more than 100,000 voters declined to state party affiliations, thereby sacrificing their right to vote for certified candidates at the primary.

BOSTON TEAM SETS MARK IN 2-MILE CONTEST

Liddell, British Champion, Comes From Behind and Wins His Race

DRAKE STADIUM, DES MOINES, Iowa, April 26.—Charles Paddock, the world's fastest sprinter, who yesterday ran the 100-yard dash in 9 6-10 seconds, tying his own world's record, today won the 125-yard special dash under a 4 yard handicap in 12 flat at the fifteenth annual Drake relays. Officials were at a loss, however, in determining the time. The watches ran from 11 9-10 seconds to 12 1-10, so 12 flat was agreed upon. Young of Drake university ran a close second.

PHILADELPHIA, April 26.—Records are falling at Franklin Field this afternoon in the final day of the Pennsylvania relay carnival.

For upwards of ten seconds of the special 100 yard dash in the Pennsylvania relay games this afternoon it appeared as though Eric Liddell, British champion, might have come on all the way from Scotland just to be left on the mark.

Wins Opening Heat
The Scot, however, retrieved a belated start by coming from behind to win the opening heat from J. J. Sullivan of Boston college in 10 2-5 seconds. Sullivan beat the gun, as did J. O. McDonald of Pennsylvania, who finished third.

The first carnival record to fall came in the early trials of the javelin throw when E. Oberst, of Notre Dame, wafted the spiked stick a distance of 196 feet 2-5 inches. The effort, though commendable, was some feet short of Milton Angier's American record.

New World's Mark
Boston college, dark horse in a great field today established a new world's record for the two mile relay distance beating Cambridge university, Georgetown and Pennsylvania State to a rich brown turn.

The winners' time, 7:47 3-5, shaded the old record of Penn State by a second and a fifth.

Various Results
120-yard high hurdles—First heat won by C. D. Moore, Penn State; second, G. L. Scattergood, Princeton. Time, 15 3-5 seconds.

GRAND ARMY MEN AND WOMEN HOLD ENJOYABLE MEET

Business Session and Dinner Feature Gathering of Civil War Vets

Approximately 150 members of the G. A. R. and W. R. C. of N. P. Banks post and guests assembled Friday at the G. A. R. hall on South Glendale avenue for one of the most enjoyable of the regular all-day meetings that has been held during the year.

The day held more than ordinary interest, as it was also an informal celebration of the twelfth anniversary of the first of the open meetings that have made the post so popular with visiting veterans and their families. The movement was inaugurated at the suggestion of past President Mrs. Flora M. Pixley during her first year in office as president, and has proven a splendid factor in the social life of the organization.

Post Commander T. C. Fuller presided at the business meeting of the G. A. R., which was held in the morning. Mrs. Adelaide Chappius was chairman of the committee of arrangements for the dinner served at noon, which is always one of the delightful features of this reunion of comrades and women of the Corps. The dinner hour was followed by an entertaining informal program. Patriotic songs, "The Battle Cry of Freedom," and "America," were sung by the G. A. R. quartette.

Comrade George W. Sanford read an original poem, "Our Father Is at the Helm," both interesting and touching. Another entertaining number was an original poem read by Myra K. C. Shuey, which was written on the occasion of the loss of her treasured necklace of buttons, or memory string, the keepsake having been lost in a fire many years ago.

Flag's Significance Comrade T. M. Barrett, patriotic instructor, spoke briefly on the significance of the use of the flag.

Comrade C. R. Norton of Glendale and Comrade George F. L. Cleve of Eagle Rock were also informal speakers.

Guests were present from Barlett Logan post of Los Angeles, and from Riverside and other outside points.

President Mary Bennett presided at the business meeting of the W. R. C. Mrs. Priscilla Houshield was elected treasurer to succeed Mrs. Emma Korts, whose resignation has been accepted.

Announcement was made regarding the coming convention of the department of California and Nevada, to be held in San Diego, shortly, to which Glendale is entitled to send nine delegates or alternates and, in addition, fourteen resident past-presidents, who are entitled to the ballot. The next all-day meeting will be held the fourth Friday in May.

BUILDS MAST TO ANCHOR DIRIGIBLE

Leonard de Waard, Formerly Of Glendale, Engineer On Mammoth Job

The mammoth mooring-mast just completed at San Diego for the naval dirigible "Shenandoah" is the engineering accomplishment of Leonard de Waard, former street superintendent of Glendale and a builder of bridges for the state of California, a man of high standing in his profession, according to William H. Reeves, former Glendale city manager.

Leonard de Waard is the son of General de Waard, famous Dutch engineer who was in charge of military operations in the Transvaal during the Boer war. Father and son contracted for and built the great mast at San Diego that will be the aerial tether of the Shenandoah when she leaves Lakehurst, N. J., for the Pacific coast. They have under consideration plans for the erection of a similar mast for the government at Nome, Alaska, states Mr. Reeves, who is a personal friend of the family.

The San Diego mooring-mast is structurally similar to the Lakehurst tower, and is said to be the only one on the Pacific coast capable of carrying the giant dirigible. Captain Thomas T. Craven of the San Diego field represents the government as supervisor of construction.

Construction Work on New Road Starts Soon

TAMMANY TIGER TURNS TO SMITH

New York Governor Logical Man to Fill Murphy's Place as Leader

NEW YORK, April 26.—Tammany dried its eyes today with one accord looked in the direction of Governor Al Smith.

Either Smith will win a place on the ticket that the Madison Square Garden will nominate eight weeks hence, or he will succeed to the leadership of Tammany, made by the death of Charles F. Murphy. On this there was almost a unanimity of opinion in Tammany quarters today.

Murphy's Successor The death of Murphy, on the eve of the Democratic national convention at a time when he probably was more powerful than at any time in his nearly quarter of a century leadership, has made Governor Smith unquestionably the outstanding figure in New York Democracy. If he fails to be nominated next June he will be the unanimous choice to fill Murphy's shoes, in the opinion of Tammany's lieutenants.

It is regarded as more or less significant that prior to Murphy's dramatic passing yesterday, those in his confidence were talking of a Ralston-Smith ticket. Murphy himself believed that such a ticket represented an ideal combination of west and east, rural and metropolitan, dry and wet strength, according to his lieutenants.

Funeral on Monday Funeral services for the dead Tammany leader will be held Monday in St. Patrick's. Despite the desire of his friends and relatives for a quiet funeral, it is probable that it will be one of the most notable in New York history.

Governor Smith will lead the Braves of Tammany in mourning. It had been hoped that Cardinal Hayes would reach New York in

TELL PLANS FOR AIDING INDUSTRY

Greater L. A. Association's Aims Explained at Meet Held in Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, April 26.—Harry H. Merrick, president of the Greater Los Angeles association, explained to 300 Hollywood business men the proposals and campaign to make sure the industrial growth of the city should parallel and equal the residential increase.

S. H. Woodruff, well known as a community builder, urged that the city be built and planned to hold a population of 8,000,000 within a very short space of time. The entire object of the Greater Los Angeles association is to provide wisely for the certain tremendous steady growth of incoming residents. That the entire Southland will benefit is the opinion of all who attended, for of the 300 who pledged their help in Hollywood, over 225 paid their portion toward the successful culmination of the drive.

Next Monday has been set aside as realtors' day and officials are also arranging that the Chambers of Commerce of the following cities: Huntington Beach, Anaheim, Fullerton, Long Beach, Alhambra and Redondo, should hold meetings to discuss, under the auspices of the Greater Los Angeles Association, how to "Keep the White Spot White."

A wind to be called a hurricane must have a velocity greater than eighty miles an hour and have a force of over 25,000 pounds per square foot.

Time to preside, but this appeared impossible today. The new cardinal sent a radio message to Mrs. Murphy from the Leviathan in mid-ocean, saying: "The city of New York has lost a great friend."

CURE MORE DESTRUCTIVE THAN DISEASE?

The invasion of an enemy like the foot and mouth plague into any territory should be the signal for caution and sanity on the part of all. The authorities should be commended for using every precaution to stamp out the disease, and yet there are many who think the cure has been worse than the disease. Knowing little of the nature of the foot and mouth scourge, we cannot comment very intelligently upon the methods used to overcome it. Those who own stock should be the first, and no doubt they were the first, to give their entire support to the rigid quarantine measures that have been deemed necessary. They should be glad, also, to have infected stock killed by the authorities, even though it is said by those who are familiar with the disease that it is curable, and all that is necessary is to segregate the infected animal from the rest of the herd.

We know a man in the San Joaquin Valley, no longer young, who has spent most of his life in building up a large dairy business. He has been ruined financially, not by the foot and mouth disease, but by the authorities coming on his place and shooting down hundreds of the finest specimens of dairy cattle. It is heart-sickening to think of these splendid animals meeting such a fate. It is too bad that the few infected animals could not have been segregated or killed and the rest of the herd given a chance. This man is only one of hundreds, of course, who have been ruined in this way.

The attitude of Arizona authorities in holding up tourists at the border and causing them suffering and hardship seems rather childish. For, if the germs of the foot and mouth disease are so easily carried, there are many ways in which they can pass from one community to another. There are air currents, birds and other agencies that do not stop at county or state lines.

Precautions are necessary and right in preventing the spread of such a scourge, but sanity as well as sanitation should prevail.

DEVELOPMENT OF CALIFORNIA

Unification of the development progress of the state is one of the great needs, particularly for Southern California, and it should lead the way by joining hands with the northern part of the state, as well as the greater central section in making all the Pacific slope an ideal place for investment as well as residents.

Many people coming to California are confused by the several sources of publicity, and they are misled into believing that only in Los Angeles county, or only in San Diego county, or only in the territory immediately adjacent to the bay district is there opportunity to succeed.

Such is not the case. Practically any part of California, with exception of desert waste, is good for something, and even the lands there are fertile if water can be obtained, as evidence the Imperial valley.

And in the matter of manufacturing there is no doubt but what raw products can be turned into the finished articles of trade as economically and efficiently, distributed with equal facility and sold just as readily here as elsewhere. By here we mean practically any community of the state on a main line railroad.

It matters little whether San Diego, Long Beach, Los Angeles, Santa Barbara, San Francisco or some other city wins a point. It makes business better for all on the coast. We need be generous in matters pertaining to development.

BASEBALL GOOD FOR YOUR SOUL

Clean baseball! Los Angeles and Vernon have produced two good baseball teams this season with a personnel of clean men and fast players. Given the support of Southern California that they deserve, there is no reason why the pennant for 1924 should not be hung in the Southland.

Up to the present point in the season, all of the Pacific Coast league has been going better than usual. Some of them are doing better now than they did all of last year. All of the teams have been given thorough overhauling. And before the end of the season box office receipts will prove to the managers and baseball leaders that the reconditioning was worth while.

Baseball is good for the soul. It is good for the health. It develops the keen sense of sportsmanship that distinguishes the real American. But the sport must be kept clean and it must be represented by clean men if it is to assume the position it deserves.

Southern California now has two good teams. Let us show our appreciation of their efforts.

It now looks as though the candidates for the presidency might be Cal and Al. There is this much in Al's favor—the Smith family is a large one—and if every member should vote for his namesake, it might place Cal at a disadvantage—unless the Brown family should come to his rescue.

We met a man the other day who has a wonderful memory. He says he recalls, vividly, the day they started to bore the Second street tunnel in Los Angeles. But he isn't willing to wager a straw that he will live to see it finished.

Those who are prevented from leaving the state because of the foot and mouth disease, might easily suffer a greater hardship. What if the bars were up so they couldn't get into California!

Some way, when we meet a fellow who shies at a full dress affair, we want to shake his hand and call him friend. Which is just another way of admitting we are old-fashioned in some respects.

COME ON LIGHTNING—STRIKE!!

Race Inferiority

By DR. FRANK CRANE

When former Senator James D. Phelan of California appeared before the Senate Committee on Immigration, to urge the exclusion of Japanese from the United States, he said: "The ultimate purpose of the Japanese is to establish themselves in this country on an equality with Europeans and themselves enjoy citizenship. If they were to be admitted under the quota law they would win their first victory in the campaign for racial equality."

Here is the very point that is the sore spot in our relations with Japan and other nations of complexion different from our own.

The intimation is that the Japanese are an inferior race and that is the very intimation that the Japanese properly resent. That they are a different race and that it might be difficult to absorb them into our citizenship they do not deny. But different does not mean inferior.

Race pride and the belief that our own blood and race is better than that of other races is a vicious conviction that is common to almost every race.

The Chinese have it, the Arabs have it, the English have it, the French have it, and, just before the war, the Germans had it pretty bad.

I do not believe there is a savage tribe in the heart of Africa or on the islands of the seven seas that does not believe that its people are the chosen of God and a little better than their neighbors.

There is no objection to the United States saying immigrants from certain countries shall be excluded and from certain other countries shall be admitted. That is its privilege. The objection comes to our statement that we exclude any race because its blood is inferior.

The Hindus, the Chinese and similar nations, are proud and cultured people. God made the negroes as well as the white folks. We have a right to say that these races are so different from us that we cannot at present absorb them into our national life without danger to national health, but we have no right to say that they are of a lower order.

The record of Japan, during the brief time that it has occupied a place in the family of nations, has been above reproach. She has never violated a treaty nor broken her word. She has manifested a keen sense of honor and a proper pride. To go out of our way to insult her would be most unfortunate.

We should remember that wars usually grow out of just this sort of thing. They are the outcropping of long cultivated ill will.

There is no doubt in the world that Japan would heartily cooperate with the United States in any program of immigration that we might desire. But we must approach the Japanese as equals and self-respecting gentlemen.

LOWING UP ADVISABLE

(From Santa Ana Register)

A banker in a western town decided that he needed a vacation. He was sixty-five years old and had been sticking rather close to office work for some time. So he arranged for an absence of several months, packed his grip and departed—to a hospital.

He chose a hospital for the scene of his holiday because there he could have a sensible diet, plenty of sleep and no business worries. He felt that those things were not available in most of the winter resorts to which his friends went.

Along toward the end of his vacation a visitor had asked him how he felt and how he liked his vacation. He answered:

"Fine! Been here two months—don't know how much longer I'll stay—maybe a week, maybe longer. It's great, this rest cure."

"And let me give some advice to tired business men past fifty years: First slow up. Take a month or two off and go to bed and stay there. It'll add ten years to one's life."

Now it wouldn't be quite fair for tired business men to throng the hospitals for such a rest cure to the exclusion of patients with emergency needs and diseases needing the care of expert physicians and nurses. Neither would two months in bed appeal to very many persons with no acute symptoms of ill health. Nevertheless, there is the germ of a sound idea in the banker's advice.

Slowing up occasionally is all that a lot of people need to keep themselves in good condition. If more of them would slow up a little every week, giving themselves leisure for extra sleep, exercise or quiet meditation, fewer of them would have to slow up for long periods of special medical treatment or rest cures.

POLICE JUDGES AT FAULT

(From San Francisco Journal)

The record of serious casualties and of deaths caused by drivers of motor vehicles in San Francisco constitutes a veritable tragedy. It has brought grief and loss into hundreds of homes. It has given our city a bad name among American municipalities as being a community where regard for public safety has reached a low ebb. It must cease.

The first and heaviest responsibility for enforcing the ordinances and laws for protecting the public against careless or incompetent drivers comes directly home to the police judges. They stand before the bar of public opinion as being chiefly responsible for the tragedy of automobile accidents and fatalities and for the present condition. The failure of many of these judges to enforce the law upon violators has often nullified the work of the police and of agencies for the protection of the public.

The judges on the police court bench have brought upon themselves the suspicion of sheltering offenders against the automobile regulations. Too often they have allowed their political interests to be their guide. They have shown themselves susceptible to the political influences of the underworld. Since this always votes at every election and the judges are chosen by popular vote, some of them cater to that part of the electorate which they consider sure to "deliver the goods" for them in the shape of votes received for services rendered.

It has been a mistake to let the choice of police justices be a matter of popular election. It should always have been a matter of appointment. The course pursued by certain of these judges in San Francisco in their treatment of violators of the speed regulations is moving the public mind and having the police court chosen by appointment.

Little Studies

—of— Human Nature

CARPING AT THE YOUNGER GENERATION

It has always been a peculiar privilege of human nature to carp at and criticize the younger generation. Just now this prerogative is being indulged to the limit. The younger, the coming generation, feel that they are being abused (not that they care), but there is nothing new about this condition of affairs. The fathers and mothers of today forgot how in their youth, in the eyes of their elders, they were headed straight for perdition.

Youth often merits rebuke, it is true, but Youth is essentially the same today as it was a thousand years ago. Times and conditions change, but Youth does not change any more than Human Nature, and Human Nature is the most unchanging quality in the world.

The pessimist who is always asking what the world is coming to and what is going to become of the young should read history. A little review of the past gives one a saner outlook on the present and the future. If we think the universe will be doomed when the time comes for us to pass on and leave the world and its affairs in the hands of the next generation, we are only feeling what every generation before us has felt. Goodness knows we haven't done much to leave the work in other hands.

Changing times and conditions are largely responsible for this attitude of the older generation toward the younger. And it is essential that times and conditions change; the world cannot stand still. Our parents were the pioneers of this great land and we do not want to go back and live as they lived and suffer the hardships they endured, much as we glory in their achievements. Neither should our children desire to go back a generation and play and study and work just as we did. We have wonderful conveniences and inventions today that have revolutionized both work and play.

Old Human Nature crops out right here in this article with a little criticism, not of the younger generation, but of the older. Work is the great salvation of the race, and the children of today are not being taught to work and, therefore, they cannot know the value of money. However, it does not become us to carp at Youth, so much better fitted in so many ways for the business of life than the parents were in their younger days.

After all, the old world manages to keep its equilibrium as generation succeeds generation and it probably will continue to do so until the end of time in spite of old Human Nature and his carping.

A Thought That Came Today

By HARVEY E. WESTGATE of Glendale

'WAY BACK YONDER

As the years go by at a faster pace,
At times I sit and idly ponder,
And see again each spot and face,
That once I knew in the old home place.
And call it—"Way Back Yonder."
'Way back yonder in years and miles,
'Way back yonder in golden days,
I see again the tears and smiles,
And playmates dressed in odden styles,
And joy returns—and stays.

Mother returns with a mother's charm,
Rocking her babe as she croons a song,
And again she enfolds me with her arm,
Guiding and keeping me from all harm,
As the love years speed along.
'Way back yonder I see once more
My father who strove to teach his plan,
That homes should glow on the open door,
With fire-place glow on the oaken floor,
And open to Every Man.

Visions of sisters and brothers come,
Come, and are welcome to stay,
Pictures of doll and kite and drum,
Guns and tackle and tops that hum,
And youth's own gladsome day;
Green were the fields and gay the brook,
That I left far behind.
And plain is the scene in memory's book,
Of every turn and every crook,
Where'er that stream did wind.

Fishing and hunting I sometimes go,
As now I sit and ponder,
In clover fields, or ice, or snow,
Once again those days I know
That I call "Way Back Yonder."
But the years sped on and we said goodbye,
And different lanes we youngsters found,
And away we went to soar and fly,
To build new homes, to do or die,
And search for virgin ground.

But back I go in thought or dream,
Though far, indeed, my feet have trod,
To those who gave their all for me,
And sadly, kindly set me free,
Who sleep beneath the sod.

The After House

By MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

THE STORY

DR. RALPH LESLIE, just graduated from medical college, and just over an attack of typhoid fever, ships on the yacht Ella as a sort of deck steward. He is penniless and thinks this will be a good opportunity to recuperate. Marshall Turner is the owner. His wife, her sister Elsa, a divorcee named Mrs. Johns, and a man named Vail are the passengers. Turner is dissipated and evidently jealous of his wife and Vail. There is a crew of fourteen, including the stewardess, a maid named Karen Hansen, the cook and Williams, the butler, Charlie Jones, a German sailor with a bent for religion, is friendly to Leslie. Captain Richardson and Turner have an argument over running the ship. Turner, drunk, appoints Singleton captain. Richardson knocks Singleton down and threatens to put Turner in irons if he interferes with the running of the boat. Mrs. Johns asks Leslie to sleep near the passengers' staterooms, in an pantry, as she is afraid of trouble. One night Schwartz, the second mate, disappears overboard, though nobody sees him jump.

VI—A SCREAM IN THE DARK

With the disappearance of Schwartz, the Ella was short-handed. I believe Captain Richardson made an attempt to secure me to take the place of Burns, now moved up into Schwartz's position. But the attempt met with a surly refusal from Turner.

The crew was plainly nervous and irritable. Sailors are simple-minded men, as a rule; their mental processes are elemental. They began to mutter that the devilship of the Turner line was at her tricks again.

That afternoon, going into the forecastle for some of my clothing, I found a curious group, gathered about the table were Tom, the mulatto cook, a Swede named Oleson, Adams, and Burns of the crew. At the head of the table Charlie Jones was reading the service for the burial of the dead at sea. The men were standing, bareheaded. I took off my cap and stood, just inside the door, until the service was over. I was strongly moved.

Schwartz disappeared in the early morning of August 9. And now I come, not without misgiving, to the night of August 12. I am wondering, if, after all, I have made clear the picture that is before my eyes; the languid, the slight relaxation of discipline, due to the leisure of a pleasure voyage, the Ella again rolling gently, with hardly a dash of spray to show that she was moving, the sun beating down on her white decks and white canvas, on the three women in summer attire, on the unending bridge, with its accompaniment of tall glasses filled with ice, on Turner's morose face and Vail's watchful one. In the forecastle, much gossip and not a little fear, and in the forward house, where Captain Richardson and Singleton had their quarters, veiled hostility and sullen silence.

August 11 was Tuesday, a hot August day, with only enough air going to keep our sails filled. At five o'clock I served afternoon tea, and shortly after I went to Williams' cabin in the forward house to dress the wound in his head, a long cut, which was now healing. I passed the captain's cabin, and heard him quarreling with the first mate, who was replying, now and then, sullenly. Only the tones of their voices reached me.

When I had finished with Williams, and was returning, the quarrel was still going on. Their voices ceased as I passed the door, and there was a crash, as of a chair violently overturned. The next bit I heard.

"Put that down!" the captain roared.

I listened, uncertain whether to break in or not. The next moment Singleton opened the door and said, "I went on as if I had heard nothing."

Beyond that, he said was much as other days. Turner ate no dinner that night. He was pale, and twitching; even with his small experience, I knew he was on the verge of delirium tremens. He did not play cards, and spent much of the evening wandering restlessly on the deck. Mrs. Turner retired early. Mrs. Johns played accompaniments for Vail to sing to, in the chartroom, until something after eleven, when they too, went to their rooms.

It being impracticable for me to go to my quarters in the store-room until the after house was settled, I went up to the cabin. I had heard a rumour that Miss Lee had been through Turner's and was talking to her. He seemed to be listening to her; but at last he stopped and freed his arm, not ungently.

"That all sounds very well, Elsa," he said, "but you don't know what you are talking about."

"I know this," "I'm not a fool—or blind." He lurching down the companionway and into the cabin. I heard her draw a long breath; then she turned and saw me. "Is that you, Leslie?" "Yes, Miss Lee."

She came toward me, the train of her soft white gown over her arm, and the light from a lantern setting some jewels on her neck to glitter.

"Mrs. Johns has told me where you are sleeping. You are very good to do it, although I think she is rather absurd."

"I am glad to do anything I can."

"I am sure of that. You are certain you are comfortable there?"

"Perfectly."

"Then—good-night. And thank you."

Unexpectedly she put out her hand, and I took it. It was the first time I had touched her, and it went to my head. I bent over her slim cold fingers and kissed them. She drew her breath in sharply in surprise, but as I dropped her hand our eyes met.

"You should not have done that," she said coolly. "I am sorry."

She left me utterly wretched. What a boor she must have thought me, to misconstrue her simple act of kindness! I loathed myself with a hatred that sent me groveling to my blankets in the pantry, and that kept me, once there, awake through all the early part of the summer night. I awakened with a sense of oppression, of smothering heat. I had struggled slowly back to consciousness, to realize that the door of the pantry was closed, and that I was stewing in the moist heat of the August night. I got up, clad in my shirt and trousers, and felt my way to the door.

The storeroom and pantry of the after house had been built in during the rehabilitation of the boat, and consisted of a short passageway with drawers for linen on either side, and beyond, lighted by a porthole, the small supply room in which I had been sleeping.

Along the passageway, then, I groped my way to the door at the end, opening into the main cabin near the chartroom door and across from Mrs. Turner's room. This door I had been in the habit of leaving open for two purposes—ventilation and in case I might be, as Mrs. Johns had feared, required in the night.

The door was locked on the outside. I was a moment or two in grasping the fact. I shook it carefully to see if it had merely caught, and then, incredulous, I put my weight to it. It refused to yield. The silence outside was absolute.

I felt my way back to the window. It was open, but was barred with iron, and even without that too small for my shoulders. I listened for the mate. It was still dark, and so not yet time for the watch to change. I would be on duty, and he rarely came aft. There was no sound of footsteps.

I lit a match and examined the lock. It was a simple one, and as my idea now was to free myself without raising an alarm, I decided to unscrew it with my pocket-knife. I was still confused, but inclined to still my imprisonment a jest, perhaps on the part of Charlie Jones, who temporarily had assumed the role of a fondness for practical joking.

I according knelt in front of the lock and opened my knife. I was in darkness and working by touch. I had extracted one screw, and with a growing sense of satisfaction was putting it in my pocket when I loosened a second when a board on which I knelt moved under my knee, lifted, as if the other end, beyond the door, had been stepped on. There was no sound, no creak. Merely that ominous lifting under my knee. There was some one just beyond the door.

A moment later the pressure was released. With a growing horror of I knew not what, I set to work at the second screw, trying to be noiseless, but with hands shaking with excitement. The screw fell out into my palm. In my haste I dropped my knife, and had to grope for it on the floor. It was then that a woman screamed—a low, sobbing cry, broken off almost before it began. I had got my knife by the time, and in desperation I threw myself against the door. It gave way, and I fell full length on the main cabin floor. I was still in darkness. The silence in the cabin was absolute. I could hear the steersman beyond the chartroom scratching a match.

As I got up six bells struck. It was three o'clock.

Vail's room was next to the pantry, and forward. I felt my way to it, and rapped.

"Vail," I called, "Vail!"

His door was open an inch or so. I went in and felt my way to his bunk. I could hear him breathing a stertorous respiration, like that of sleep, and yet unlike the sound ceased, and did not commencing. I struck a match and bent over him.

He had been almost cut to pieces with an axe.

Who screamed? And who murdered Vail? Read the next exciting instalment to find out how the yacht's crew, knowing the murderer was among them, tried to solve the mystery. Monday—Which Is the Murderer?

May Raze Landmark In Development Plan

LOS ANGELES, April 26.—

Bunker Hill, long famous landmark of Los Angeles, is in danger of being razed if the plans announced by E. W. Lewis, director of the Business Men's association, are carried out.

It was pointed out that by an expenditure of $1,000,000 the property thus affected would be worth over $5,000,000. The improvement would be priceless in other ways, too, for it would act like a stabilizer to the business district.

It is said that Los Angeles is more prosperous than is usually realized. As an added sign is the fact that there is not one vacant store on Broadway and very few in the entire city.

A crib that can be converted into a high chair at will, has been invented.

This Prophecy Will Come True—Glendale To Be Part Of It

Business in the Southwest is 7 per cent ahead of the volume of a year ago, according to Roger W. Babson's special report on current business conditions. The states comprising this section average about evenly with the country as a whole, according to the well-known statistician's findings.

"California is leading the group of southwestern states with a gain of 8 per cent over last year," says Mr. Babson. "Arizona comes next with a gain of 2 per cent; New Mexico follows with a gain of 1 per cent. In checking up Utah we find a loss of 2 per cent; Colorado a loss of 4 per cent, and Nevada a loss of 11 per cent. These states differ from most of the other western and southern states in that a large portion of their purchasing power comes from their minerals. Vast quantities of petroleum have been taken from the ground in Southern California; large amounts of copper are being mined in Arizona, Nevada and Utah; Colorado and New Mexico are rich in coal deposits; while gold, silver and other metals are found in practically all of these states.

"The raising of livestock has also been a feature of these states, although one may be somewhat surprised to find that only from 5 to 10 per cent of their income is derived from this source. Arizona leads the group in livestock production. Where formerly cattle were a source of great income, sheep are now found to be more profitable in most sections. Incidentally, as the price of cotton increases the demand for wool should also increase.

"Hay is the principal crop of each of these states with the exception of California and Arizona, although it should be noted that hay is more of a 'supply' crop than a 'cash' crop. In California, of course, fruit leads, and in Arizona half of the agricultural income is derived from high grade cotton.

"Examining the barometer of failures, we find California, Nevada and Utah showing relatively small increase in failures compared with a year ago; while Colorado is somewhat less favorable, and Arizona and New Mexico show relatively large failure increase. All of these states, with the possible exception of California, have weathered the worst of their readjustments.

"When considering the various opportunities of these states, one should not overlook the great latent and undeveloped water power and irrigation possibilities. Not only does manufacturing grow up amongst such powers, but in their localities living should ultimately be easiest and perhaps most economical. It is estimated that a large proportion of the water power resources of the country are in the southwest. It is quite possible that the Pacific Coast states may lead the world in the development and application of hydro-electric power."

In conclusion Mr. Babson made this interesting prophecy regarding the Pacific Coast:

"Little do the people of America realize how rapidly the center of business activity is moving westward. With the Atlantic Ocean the great present day artery of commerce, and with New York our greatest seaport, we are apt to forget the great changes which are coming tomorrow. IT, HOWEVER, WILL BE ONLY A QUESTION OF TIME WHEN THE PACIFIC OCEAN WILL CARRY THREE-QUARTERS OF THE WORLD'S TRADE AND LOS ANGELES WILL PROBABLY BE THE SECOND OR THIRD CITY IN SIZE IN THE UNITED STATES AND THE ENTIRE PACIFIC COAST IS DESTINED TO SEE GREAT GROWTH."

Washington Attorney Denies Montana Senator Aided In Getting Lease

WASHINGTON, April 26.—Additional evidence designed to absolve Senator Burton K. Wheeler, Democrat, of Montana, of the charges that led to his indictment by a federal grand jury in Montana, was laid before the Borah committee.

William G. Feely, Washington attorney, flatly denied charges that Wheeler had handled oil permits for Gordon Campbell, a Montana promoter. Feely said his law firm represented Campbell, and that Wheeler was not consulted.

Senator Walsh, Oklahoma Geologist Stage Tilt at Oil Hearing

WASHINGTON, April 26.—A sharp tilt between Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana, and James O. Lewis, geologist, of Tulsa, Okla., who made a survey of the Teapot Dome oil reserve, enlivened the Senate's oil investigation.

Senator Walsh charged that Lewis, who was recalled by Senator Shor, Republican of Missouri, "was prejudiced over losing the Dome," when he was employed by the public lands committee to make a geological report on the reserve.

Jersey Island Women Win Political Contest

ST. HELIER, April 26.—Women in the island of Jersey have won a political victory.

After a heated debate the Jersey states have decided, by thirty votes to twelve, to extend women's political rights. They are now to be permitted to take their seats in the House as people's representatives, subject to their being 30 years of age and otherwise enjoying full civil rights.

They are not eligible as life members. The female population of Jersey is 27,356. At the last election nomination papers handed in on their behalf were reduced.

WILL SPEND $4,000,000 ON ROADS

Highway Body Approves Betterment Program for Highways

Believing in the old adage, "A stitch in time saves nine," the California Highway Commission, after a study of the State Highway Engineer R. M. Morton, has approved a maintenance and betterment program for the California state highway system of $4,000,000 for expenditure during the year 1924.

The sum, which will be taken from the state's share of the motor vehicle and gasoline tax funds, is by far the largest ever appropriated for maintenance of the state highways of California. The program is based on a carefully worked out budget prepared by the maintenance engineers, after detailed studies of the needs of various sections of the state and the cost of certain specific betterments which will be completed under the direction of the maintenance department.

The mileage now under maintenance by the state, it is announced, is approximately 4,550 miles, an increase of over 600 miles during the year 1923.

The past year, also, has witnessed the working out of an entirely new maintenance organization within the state highway department. Maintenance of highways has become a specialized function in itself, and has been placed in charge of engineers who have made studies of the problems involved and who are charged with this particular duty.

Besides general maintenance, the $4,000,000 will be expended for purchase and repair of tools, slide removal, purchase of new equipment, upkeep of permanent maintenance stations and purchase of new sites and erection of buildings, cost of the issuance of permits for necessary trespasses on the highway right of way, maintenance of shade trees, rental of equipment, and specific betterments which are too small to be done under contract.

$40,000 For Trees
During 1924, the cost of caring for shade trees along the highway alone will be over $40,000, and owing to the dry year, additional funds may be necessary for this purpose. On the other hand, the department expects to save on its slide removal allotment because lack of rain has resulted in no slides of any consequence to date.

Beginning with the present year, the equipment department is charging the maintenance crews for the state owned equipment in use. Besides making possible a true statement of a cost of specific pieces of work, these rents provide a fund for the operation of the commission's shops in Sacramento and in the divisions and also finance the purchase of new equipment, as needed.

Of the total maintenance budget, approximately $800,000 will go into specific betterments, such as widening or eliminating curves, improving grades and alignment and other similar work which is a permanent improvement of the highway. Strictly speaking, such work is not maintenance but is generally done under the same direction.

An effort will be made in the future to segregate, as far as possible, betterments and maintenance.

Use Of Word 'Realtors' Is Held By Law

Persistent use of the word "realtors" in the firm name of persons not entitled to that designation is a substantial misrepresentation, constituting dishonest conduct, according to a decision just laid down by the Illinois State Department of Education and Registration, which administers the Illinois real estate license law.

The Illinois department has denied applications for a real estate broker's license to a group of Chicago brokers who had used in their firm name the designation "realtors," although none of the applicants was or ever had been a member of any constituent real estate board of the National Association of Real Estate Boards. The decision is based on the finding of the department that the word "realtor" has come to be generally understood by the public to mean a man bound by real estate board membership to the standard of conduct in business laid down for its members by the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

The firm in question, following a hearing of their case, promised to give up the unwarranted designation, but later resumed its use.

Dates for Realtors' High Jinks Announced

The annual high jinks and golf tournament of the Southern California Realty boards will be held at Del Monte, May 23, 24 and 25, according to announcement by both boards. Special trains will be chartered from both cities to bring the realtors to the famous hostelry on Monterey peninsula for their three days of play. There will be a Derby Day, baseball game, golf matches, tug of war, polo and other forms of athletic pastime. Last year about 300 realtors attended the Del Monte affair, and two years ago a like number gathered at Santa Catalina Island. President W. L. Brent has appointed Frank Ryan as general chairman of the Los Angeles end of the arrangements. Ryan was board president when the intercity trips were originated three years ago. The high jinks will precede by five days the departure of the California delegation to the Washington national convention.

Gives Ruling on Bonds of Realtors

The State Real Estate Department has issued the following notice to all applicants for real estate licenses:

"Copartnerships and corporations must furnish a separate questionnaire for each member; one bond is sufficient. Personal surety bonds run concurrently with and expire with the license; other bonds run for one year and are then renewed; commencement date of bond must correspond with date of your application for license. We cannot accept stamps nor uncertified checks from salesmen."

REALTOR GIRLS ORGANIZE

Under the wing of the Atlantic City Real Estate Board a Realtor Girls' Club has just been organized. Similar clubs already have been organized among women employed in realtors' offices; connected with a number of real estate boards within the national association.

NEW RECORD IN INCOME RETURNS

$15,677,455 Increase Revealed in Goodcell Report to Washington

That the tax reported on 1923 income by Southern California taxpayers increased $15,677,455 compared with the tax assessed on 1922 income, was disclosed in a special report sent to Washington by Collector of Internal Revenue Rex B. Goodcell.

The survey showed that on 1923 income tax assessed was $47,437,704 as against $31,760,249 for 1922 income, a gain of 49 per cent.

"This assessment of $47,437,704 breaks all records of the Southern California District," declared Collector Goodcell.

Millions Ahead
"It is millions of dollars greater than the tax assessed for any year prior to the enactment of the Revenue Act of 1921 which reduced income taxes $7,000,000 annually in this district. Not only did Southern California's steadily increasing production of income offset the $7,000,000 reduction this year, but it went further and piled up a credit of $8,677,000."

"Figured on the basis of an average tax rate of 6 per cent, without taking the benefit of personal exemptions, the tax increase of $15,677,455 would call for a new net income of $261,290,916, which was earned in 1923."

That the cost of collecting internal revenue taxes and enforcing the laws of internal revenue department has been reduced to a minimum, was disclosed in a report sent to Washington by Collector Goodcell.

In reporting collections amounting to $38,732,914 for the last

Hotel Selected for Realtors' Meeting

The Huntington Hotel at Pasadena, one of the finest and largest hotels in the West, has been selected by the Pasadena Realty Board for the 20th annual convention of the California Real Estate Association, October 8-11, 1924, according to announcement today by Clifton J. Platt, chairman of the Pasadena convention committee. All sessions of the convention will be held at the hotel. Accommodations have been secured for 1,000 delegates. Advance reservations by Realtors for rooms are being made through the housing committee of Pasadena consisting of H. L. Gianetti and R. A. Swink.

REALTOR PUBLICATION

The Denver Real Estate Exchange has just begun the publication of a four-page weekly bulletin, the Denver "Realtor," initiated not only for the purpose of affording information to members but also for acquainting the public with the fact that the word "realtor" has the same guarantee to the homeseeker as the word "sterling" on silver. The Wichita Real Estate Board has issued Vol. 1, No. 1 of a weekly bulletin. The Kansas City, Kan., Real Estate Board is issuing a weekly news sheet.

Association's Great Growth Is Displayed

There are in the United States and Canada a total of 19,441 persons engaged in real estate as a vocation who are entitled to the designation "realtor," according to the membership roster of the National Association of Real Estate Boards for 1924, which has been compiled this week.

The term "realtor" is not a general term, it is pointed out. It is a coined word with a definite ethical and professional significance, and can be applied only to active members of constituent boards of the National Association of Real Estate Boards. All active members of these boards have subscribed to the code of ethics laid down by the association and in return are licensed to use its membership designation.

Associated and affiliated members of the association, made up of property owners, members of professions allied to real estate, and salesmen in realtor offices now number 17,676, the 1924 roster shows. This brings the membership of the association, including all classes of members, to a total of 37,117.

Examination to Test Michigan Applicants

Passing a competency test will be required for membership in the Michigan Real Estate association, according to a plan now being considered by the association. The membership committee of the association, at the instruction of its executive board is now drawing up a tentative set of questions suitable for such a test.

Movement throughout the National Association of Real Estate boards to establish standards for admission to the practice of real estate, now recognized as entailing responsibilities to the community comparable to those of professions such as that of the engineer and the architect, has brought with it a movement to make definite, by some entrance qualification, the standard of real estate boards for admission to their own membership. The Madison, Wisconsin, real estate board is the first organization within the National Association to require applicants for membership to pass an entrance examination to show professional competency.

LIST REALTY VALUES

Broadening of the fact basis of the realtor's professional judgment, now being advanced nationally through investigations of the seven divisions of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, is the object of the information bureau of local real estate values established by the Detroit Real Estate Board. Information as to thousands of parcels of property is there available as based on actual sales transfers or appraisals.

SECRETARY OF BOARD

John L. Murray, formerly of the Philadelphia North American, has been appointed executive secretary of the Philadelphia Real Estate Board, succeeding M. A. Kelly, resigned.

REVISE MEMBER LIST

The Anderson, Indiana Real Estate board, following the suggestion of the national association's model constitution for individual boards, has reclassified its membership on the individual basis rather than on the basis of firms.

BUILDING TO REACH SIX BILLIONS

Conservative Attitude Urged in All Business by Economic Expert

While the nation's building program is now progressing at a rate that, if steadily maintained, will approximate $6,000,000,000 for the year, a conservative attitude should be taken with regard to the immediate future both in the building industry and in all other lines of business, according to a statement made by S. W. Straus, president of S. W. Straus and Company, who recently completed an extensive western trip.

"While general conditions in the building industry are well stabilized and the prospects are favorable for an active summer, I believe now is the time when all prospective building projects should be most carefully scrutinized," said Mr. Straus. "While the amount of pending construction in this country is very large, judging from the volume of building plans that have been filed since the first of the year, and indicate that current activities are at the rate of $8,000,000,000 for this year, it should be borne in mind that we have had an interrupted period of unusual activity in the industry for more than two years, and therefore a

Brokers' Division to Discuss Creative Sales

The real estate broker's special service is the use of his judgment to perceive the fullest possibilities which any given property has, and to arrange for the use of the property to fulfill that possibility. "Creative sales," sales involving the realtor's creative judgment in the use of properties, will be discussed by the National Association of Real Estate Boards at its coming annual convention at Washington, D. C., June 3-6, as the opening topic of meetings of the brokers' division of the association.

The brokers' meeting, together with simultaneous meetings of farm land dealers, real estate mortgage specialists, specialists in industrial real estate, subdividers and home builders, specialists in property management and realtor board secretaries, will make up the parallel division conventions into which the general convention session will break up every afternoon.

Desirability of long term leases will be a second discussion point on the brokers' program. Other subjects to be taken up are practical aids in selling homes, the appraisal of real estate property for sale and rental, the development of real estate salesmen, and recent developments in multiple listing, as practiced by real estate boards throughout the country.

Results of a two-year investigation, now being made by the division on the cost of doing a real estate brokerage business, will be analyzed before the division's concluding meeting, June 5.

London Cleric Says Need for Conversation May Soon Be at Low Ebb

By DAVID M. CHURCH
For International News Service.
LONDON, April 26.—"I can hardly bear to think of the coming generation," confesses Father Ronald A. Knox, one of the leading English essayists and philosophers.

Father Knox, the son of a bishop in the Church of England and himself formerly a Church of England cleric, but now a member of the Catholic faith, admits that he is a pessimist at least three days a week, but even on the days when he is an optimist he has little success in seeing a bright future.

"Nobody can suppose that modern inventions ennoble us," said Father Knox. "A little thought shows that they are degrading us. The highest achievement of the human genius is the art of conversation; in it we both create and absorb, give and receive. In fifty years the very need for conversation will have died out; we shall all be listening to someone at the end of a tube talking to us about tomorrow's weather. I suppose we shall retain the faculty of speech, so as to ask for the mustard, but conversation will have gone."

Education But Toy
"The optimist tells us that in the next generation we shall be better educated and, therefore, more enlightened in our tastes, more generous and more humane. But it is in the least certain that we, a state-educated generation, compare favorably in any of these points with the generation that preceded us? And even if we did, is it certain that the influence of education will make itself felt in a continuous curve?"

"Rather, the truth seems to be that education in our time has been a new toy which the democracy enjoyed playing with; already it is getting tired of the toy—just as voting was a favorite toy after the reform act, but has now become an unfashionable pastime, as you may see from the election returns, among the male population."

"Women are still keen on education, just as they are still keen on voting; but both are new toys to them. Will they go on being keen? If they do I suppose they will go from strength to strength—smoking pipes (I hope) instead of their horrible little cigarettes, and cutting their hair really short, so as to look like business men instead of second-rate feminists. If they do they will certainly get all the jobs, except perhaps the very highly intellectual ones; that is inevitable since man hates work as a nuisance, but woman works for the love of it."

Husbands Do Cooking
"Husbands, I suppose, will be reduced to doing the cooking and the shopping and such portions of the housework as they cannot dodge without being detected. I do not suggest that they will mind the children, because obviously nobody will mind the children."

"The child of the future, I take it, will be busy making airplanes until it is old enough to go to school and learn how to idle."

"The future generation of Englishmen will probably be eugenically born. Psycho-analytically bred, Montessori education; trained at school on a mixture of geography, calisthenics and lantern lectures on Syracuse; living in central-heated super-bungalows faced with eucalyptic tiles, feeding on food and water and chewing gum; bracing themselves with a whole pharmacopoeia of nerve tonics for the effort of staggering to the nearest movie, and so groping their jaded way from the incubator to the crematorium."

"I may have accelerated the time process slightly, but I fear I have not misread the symptoms."

Father Asks Son, Sent
Up for Life, to Study

ROME, Ga., April 26.—Although his young son Ralph is serving a life sentence in the county chain gang here, "Pa" Baker constantly urges him to pursue his school work. Ralph, with his brother, George, was convicted about two years ago of the murder of a deputy sheriff in Walker county. George was sentenced to pay the supreme penalty and was executed at Lafayette about a year ago.

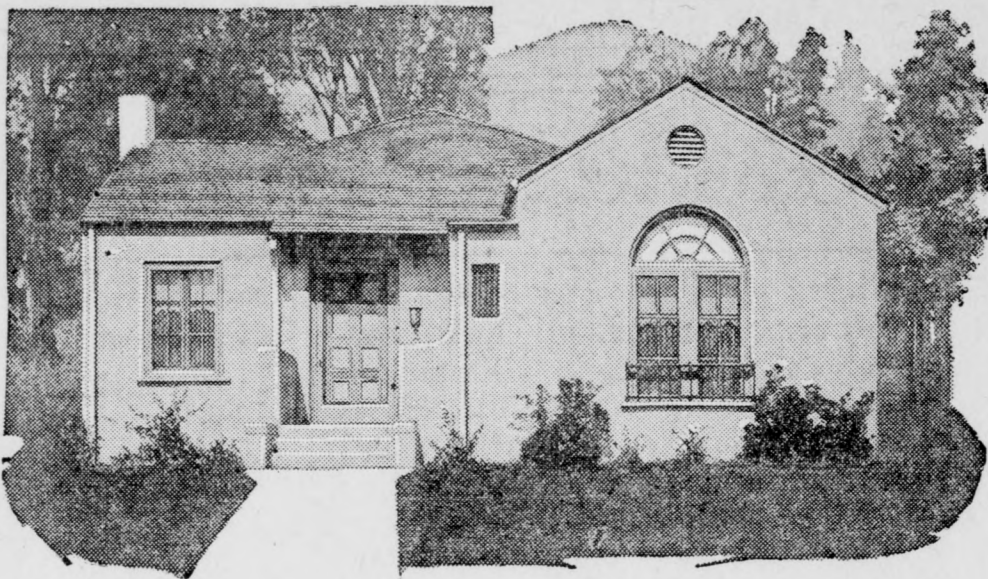

"Pa" Baker, a broken and heart-sick old man, makes a monthly trip here to visit his other convict son. He lives in East Chattanooga, where he hauls wood and plies his trade as a carpenter. "My son was only in the fourth grade when he got into this trouble," the heart-sick father said on a recent visit here. "Now he is a prisoner for life, but just the same I want him to continue to improve himself mentally, and my boy is grasping every opportunity to study and read. His message to his little brothers at home always is that they go to school and get an education."

Extra Room Cares For Guests

Spanish design embodies unusually roomy features that make for comfort in home that may yet be erected on fifty-foot lot. Courtesy of Low Building Co., authorized representatives for Pacific Ready-Cut Homes.

Homes with three bedrooms are almost a necessity when hospitable families wish to provide for guests. We are illustrating this week a stucco Spanish home of unusual design that can be placed on a fifty-foot lot and it embodies ample room. The living room is 14x19 and the dining room is 14x15, with additional space provided by the recess where a buffet is located.

The plan has three bedrooms, each of which has a closet, and the bathroom is equipped with the finest plumbing fixtures and a handy linen closet. For added convenience a linen closet is placed in the hall. A screen porch is recessed, sheltered from the wind and rain. The porch is protected by semi-rod and in the recess on the porch a seat is located.

Iron grille work is placed at the front window and the glass above the French windows is arranged in the French fashion, forming an attractive motif. Just above the large window a latticed port-hole has been placed.

SENATORS SCORE RED PLOT STORY

Play Daugherty for Failure to Prosecute Alleged Conspirators

WASHINGTON, April 26.—Replying to the charge of former Attorney-General Daugherty that a Russian soviet influence was responsible for the investigation of the department of justice, Senators Wheeler, Democrat of Montana, and Brookhart, Republican of Iowa, declared that Daugherty had failed to carry out his duty as the nation's chief law enforcement officer in the United States. Daugherty's charges were made in a speech at Columbus, Ohio.

"If Daugherty has proof of Bolshevik activities in this country he should turn it over to the committee," Wheeler said. "He should also have indicted every person who has been connected with this case. He has not done so. He has grossly derelict in his duty. He was only too glad to try to frame me—I wonder he didn't try it with the others."

Brookhart said: "Either Daugherty has spoken empty words or he has confessed he failed to carry out his duty as attorney-general of the United States. The public can take his choice."

Warm Pan, Nightcap
Haled as Health Aids

LONDON, April 26.—Twenty-fourth-century man would be healthier and happier if he would sleep with a nightcap on his head and a warming pan at his feet, according to Sir James Cantlie, one of England's best known physicians. Sir James is 73 and claims he can dance as nimbly as he could at 17.

"Don't think because you live in an age of airplanes you know all about hygiene," he declared. "Your grandmothers were no fools."

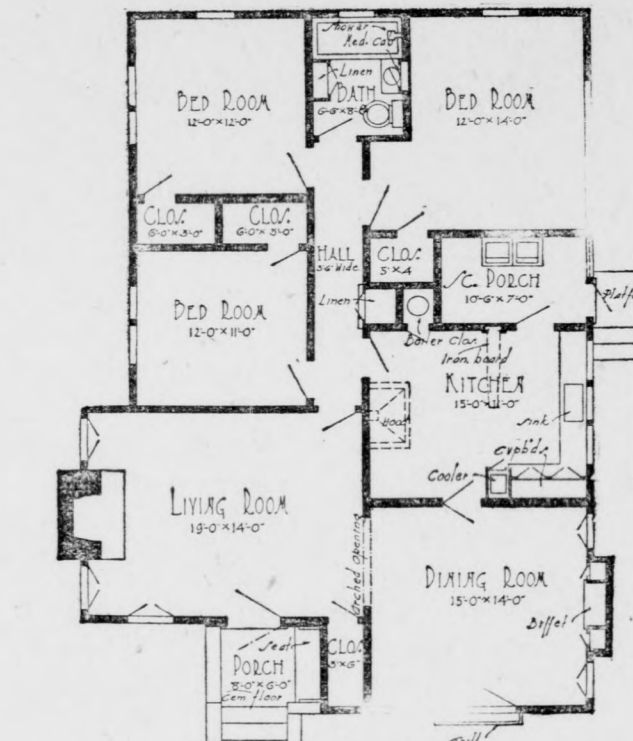

Bald heads were much scarcer, Sir James asserted, in the days when men wore nightcaps. In a damp climate like England, he said, a nightcap is as necessary as clothes. Warming pans, likewise, aid the health of the sleeper by drying out the sheets before bed-time, a year ago.

SAYS DOUBLE TO SERVE JAIL TERM

Rich Bootlegger Sentenced
To 18 Months as Plot
Is Discovered

SAN FRANCISCO, April 26.—James Greenan, wealthy convicted bootlegger, today started to serve an 18 months' jail sentence in person.

Nick Semey, his double, was also in jail facing a charge of conspiracy. Greenan was originally sentenced to serve one month in jail. Semey appeared at the court and represented himself to be Greenan and served five days before the deception was discovered. Greenan confessed in court he had promised Semey $500 for serving the sentence. The court as a result of the fraud raised Greenan's sentence eighteen-fold.

Why I Am In Glendale

Just why I came to Glendale, Truly the reason is easily explained; Grateful we are for this scenic spot. But especially for the health husband regained. We had journeyed sore and weary, Over deserts wide and dreary, With this one thought uppermost in mind, To reach Glendale, "the Edenic spot" of the southern clime, Where frail bodies by her magic touch are turned to health, Where the toilers press a button, and have access to her untold wealth, Where the roses bloom sweetest and her soft breezes sway the clinging vines, And the church bells ring a welcome to the many folk of distant climes. May they share in our various quests and no longer chase the rainbow's pot of gold, But pass on the cordial welcome, for surely "the half has not yet been told."

Temple of Chance Will Be Built by Millionaires
On Lavish Scale

LOS ANGELES, April 26.—That a second Monte Carlo will be built off the coast of California on the Guadalupe Islands, was announced today by a Southern California millionaire, who refused to allow his name to be used.

A $500,000 hotel, which will be run in the nature of a club, will be built within the next three months and a casino and a crystal cafe will follow soon. The cafe, of the dramatic glass, will be built of electric fountains making an aurora borealis effect. Live peacocks and Nubian attendants will make part of the spectacular setting.

It is said that twenty millionaires have already signed up for membership.

BELVEDERE, April 26.—The largest town in the world not incorporated is said to be Belvedere, a suburb of Los Angeles, not yet absorbed. It claims a population of 60,000 and has its own water, gas and electric system. The citizens claim that the town runs itself, as it has no mayor and no political machine. J. W. Amendment for Child Labor Ready in House

WASHINGTON, April 26.—The child labor constitution amendment is to be brought to a vote in the House shortly under plans matured today by the House leaders. Pressure for action on the resolution that there may be no delay in submitting it to the states for ratification is coming from many sources. House advocates of the resolution say they have the necessary two-thirds vote to insure its passage. The amendment gives congress power to regulate and prohibit employment of children under 18 years of age.

FEDERAL FORCES WAR ON SCOURGE

Favorable Reports Indicate Gravity of Situation Is Diminishing

SACRAMENTO, April 26.—With the full weight of the United States government in the battle to eradicate the foot and mouth disease which has been found among livestock in California, Dr. U. G. Houck, personal representative of Secretary Wallace, department of agriculture, has now begun to direct the consolidated state and federal forces, upon notification from Washington.

While recognizing the gravity of the situation, Dr. Houck declared it not alarming, encouraging reports being received today from two larger infected areas. Only six ranches within quarantined districts involving comparatively few cattle were added to the list having diseased herds.

Replying to statements alleging the slaughter of cattle to be unnecessary and that the disease can be cured, Dr. Houck said:

Killing Only Method
"As a result of years of experience in handling such situations, the United States department of agriculture forces have found that slaughtering of the infected animals is the most economical and the only known effective method of eradicating the malady in countries that have had it."

"The government will continue the slaughtering method in California in full co-operation with state officials, the livestock owners and the business interests generally."

CONVICTS BREAK JAIL, 15 ESCAPE

Overpower Guards, Fight
Way to Freedom in Wake
Of Notorious Bandit

DENVER, April 26.—Investigation was under way today by city and county authorities to place responsibility for a wholesale jail delivery from the Denver county jail last night that resulted in the escape of fifteen prisoners, many of them considered "desperate characters."

St. Paul and Denver bandit, convicted here two weeks ago of highway robbery, the prisoners fought their way out of the jail after overpowering the guards. The In Automobile
Hanlon, who was the leader of a bandit gang that terrorized Denver for several weeks before his capture, fled with three other prisoners in an automobile that was waiting outside the jail. A blinding snowstorm prevailed at the time.

Reports early this morning from eastern Colorado said that this bandit car was believed to have passed through Limon and Hugo, traveling at a high rate of speed toward the Kansas line. A volley of shots fired at the fleeing prisoners by Sheriff Goss of Lincoln county failed to halt them.

NESBIT DIVORCE SUITS REOPENED

Jack Clifford Revives His
Bill Against Thaw's
Former Wife

NEW YORK, April 26.—The suits for divorce instituted by Evelyn Nesbit and her former husband and dancing partner, Jack Clifford, against each other, were in the limelight today, following a decision of Supreme Court Justice Richard P. Lydon to re-open the suit brought by Clifford.

Clifford started suit against Harry K. Thaw's former wife and dropped it in December, 1921. Now, on the heels of the Philadelphia court decision declaring Thaw sane, the case has been re-opened at the request of Clifford's counsel. In his complaint, Clifford named Eugene Strong, an actor.

Miss Nesbit's counter claim for divorce named Ann Luther, beautiful motion picture star, who recently married Ed Gallagher of the stage team of Gallagher and Shean, and Juanita Hanson, screen star, as co-respondents.

Will Warns Husband, 73, About Remarrying

REDDING, April 26.—If Thomas W. Macaulay, aged 73, marries a second time, he will forfeit an estate valued at $5000, left by his wife, Mrs. Mary L. Macaulay, who died in this city January 9.

The will, which was executed in Yreka in 1911, provides that the husband forfeits his inheritance by again entering the bonds of matrimony. In that event the estate is to be divided among the five sons and daughters.

Offer Money Prizes For Essays On Glendale And Acacia Hills Subdivision

RULES ACACIA HILLS ESSAY CONTEST
Contest is open to all Glendale school children. Essays must be in the mail or at the tract office by May 15. Name, address, phone and grade at school are required. Use 8 x 11 1/2 paper, ink or typewriter, one side of paper only.
The Subject:
"Why Glendale is the Fastest Growing City in America," and
"Why Acacia Hills is one of Glendale's Most Desirable Homesite Locations."
Prizes: A grand prize of $50, and four $10 prizes for different grade groups.

Why is Glendale the fastest growing city in the United States? Why is Acacia Hills one of Glendale's most desirable homesite locations? Two pertinent and yet all-important questions. The first the Glendale Chamber of Commerce intends to answer and prove without doubt for the benefit of the world. The second Glendale residents have already answered by their eagerness to buy and rapidly in building in Beautiful Acacia Hills.

The whole country is going to know the why and wherefore of Glendale's phenomenal growth. With Acacia Hills daily expanding both in popularity and development the big majority of Glendale citizens know of the merits and advantages that have made this gentle rolling foothill property one of the most desirable locations in this near vicinity.

"But why stop here?" says Karl W. Martin, sales agent for Acacia Hills. "We know right well that those men who in the recent past have been instrumental in building up Glendale to the world's fastest growing city will carry on in the near future. What we are interested in is the continuation of this phenomenal growth. We want to know that Glendale will go on and on and take its destined place as one of the southland's foremost cities. We want to know that our sons and daughters will carry on—we want them to take an early interest in civic affairs, see the spirit of co-operation that has made this growth possible."

Offer Essay Prize
"It is with this purpose in view—the fostering of an early interest in civic affairs amongst our school children, that I have inaugurated a prize essay contest. It is open to every school boy or girl in Glendale. There are no restrictions and only a few general rules covering the size of paper and the closing date. The subject is, why Glendale is the fastest growing city in America and why Acacia Hills is one of Glendale's most desirable homesite locations."

"Prizes for the contest will include a grand prize of $50, a cash prize of $10 for the winning pupil in sixth or lower grades, $10 to winner in seventh and eighth grades, $10 to winner in ninth and tenth grades, $10 to winner in 11th and 12th grades. All essays must be in the mail or delivered to tract office by May 15th. Name, address, phone and grade are required on each manuscript. All essays must be on 8 x 11 1/2 paper, either ink or typewriter, and only written on one side of the paper. Neatness, spelling, etc., will be considered in awarding prizes. Any one connected with the Acacia Hills organization will be glad to answer any and all questions regarding the facts pertaining to the property, its location, price, view, improvements, restrictions, (race and building), transportation, schools, churches, stores title to property, distance from business section of Glendale and Los Angeles. All of these factors will be important points for your essay—you will find valuable information in the literature to be given all contestants."

"We invite all Glendale school children to join in this contest. We will assist contestants in every possible manner. That there may be sufficient time for children who have not as yet started work on their essays we have extended the time limit to May 15. Contestants can obtain all information and data by calling at our tract office at Palmer and Tyler streets, or by phoning this office at Glendale 321-R and we will mail all instructions and necessary literature."

BELIEVES DANCE CRAZE IS PASSED

British Ballroom Habitués
Now Choose All Music
with Great Care

LONDON, April 26.—Close observers of ballroom dancing in London think that the dance craze has passed its zenith.

This is particularly noticeable at dinner and supper dances. Where, two or three years ago a man and a woman rose up from the table immediately the band struck up a dance tune, though perhaps they were half-way through a dish, today they often complete the whole meal before they prepare to dance.

They also wait to hear the beginning of the tune before they decide whether it is worth while dancing to. They choose their dances almost as carefully as they choose their wines.

One reason for this is the large amount of very poor dance music which is being played at present. It looks as though the monotonous supremacy of the foxtrot, which is often played three times in succession and usually forms the bulk of a dance program, is helping to daunt the ardor of those who were once dancing mad.

But, of course, there are exceptions. Take the case of Sir James Cantlie, famous British physician. His slogan is "Keep on dancing."

"Here am I," he says, "aged 73, and I can dance as well today as when I was 17. I dance every day of my life, and I hope to go on doing so for the next twenty years."

"The limbs are the parts of the body that need exercise most. Dancing is one of the best ways of exercising them. Go on dancing, and your breath will last all the longer."

SERVANT GIRL IS BIGGEST PROBLEM

Moral Defection in England
Is More Common Among
This Class, Report

LONDON, April 26.—Domestic servants form the largest proportion of the girls in London who have strayed from the straight and narrow path, according to Captain H. L. Stringer, of the Central Council for Rescue and Preventative Work in London.

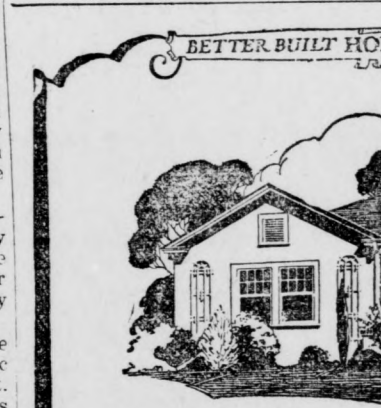

"There is also," stated Captain Stringer, "an appreciable number of factory workers, shop assistants, waitresses, clerks and business girls, and girls of no occupation; there are a few nurses, actresses and others of the professional classes, but there is no doubt whatever that the main body are domestic servants."

"This fact may possibly be accounted for by the great number of girls in domestic service as compared with other occupations, and to some extent also by the living conditions both in private houses and the less reputable hotels and boarding houses."

Moral defections among these girls is due to the large number of ignorant girls who are deceived by false descriptions of city life, Captain Stringer added.

FRENCH HONORS MAY FALL UPON AMERICAN GIRL

To Be Nominated to Ecole
de Beaux Arts; Praise
for Modeling

By ALICE LANGELEIR
For International News Service.

PARIS, April 26.—Paris is gradually learning that the land of the Stars and Stripes also produces other good things besides the dollar.

The name of a young American artist is about to be proposed to the Ecole de Beaux Arts, an honor which is not to be taken lightly. It is that of Barbara Herbert, of New York City, an American painter, who came over to Europe to study sculpture more than a year ago.

"It all began with this hand," explained Miss Herbert, showing a splendid study in bronze, the fingers and wrist as supple and flexible as if in the flesh and blood. This was her first piece of sculpture. It turned out to be the "hand of fate."

"My line had always been painting, when I suddenly took a desire to model—to create, in other words—and so I came over to Paris and found the famous Professor Peynot. He is too old—76 years—to really take on teaching, but he said he would help and criticize my work if I would show him what I could do in the modeling of a hand."

Herbert's work was well received, for Miss Herbert has been continuing her work ever since and has turned out some exceedingly interesting studies.

"Smiling Sadness" shows unusual feeling. It is the death-mask of a charming young girl, very sad, but still smiling, who died soon after receiving word that her lover was dead. The eyelids show traces of tears, and the lips are closed in peaceful resignation. Her hair is parted in the centre and, over her ears, wound into old-fashioned coils.

"This is my favorite," declares Miss Herbert. "I like and subject best to bring out my feelings, although, as a matter of fact, here in Paris it is easy to work on almost any model. This is the only place for an artist."

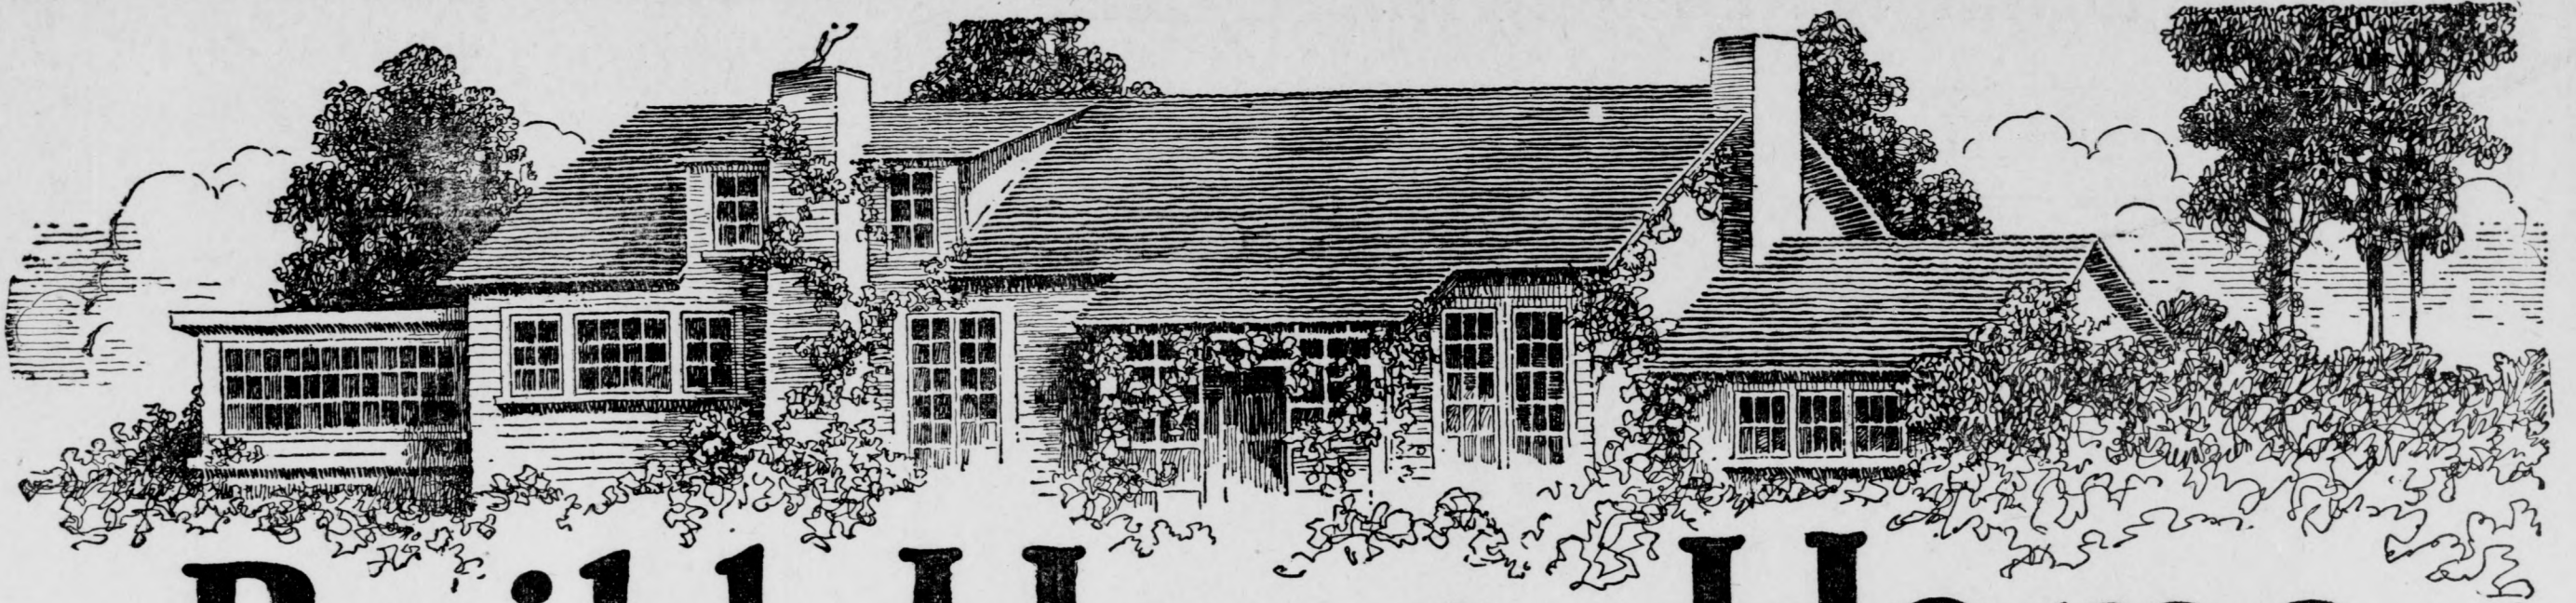

Miss Herbert's second work was a delightful baby's head, and after that an old man with a striking character. Wrapped up in a damp towel was a skull with interesting bony structure, a work which she is just completing.

Authorities Check Report
Ouija Board Set Toll
At Seven Deaths

UKIAH, Cal., April 26.—An alleged ouija board command that Mrs. Annie Mattson, aged 65, "kill seven persons to escape eternal torture" was being investigated by officers today as arrangements were made for an inquest into the death of John Mattson, 24, her son.

Mrs. Mattson, who has been held in the county jail here, was to be taken to Fort Bragg for the inquest. The aged woman told officers that "the ouija board" told her she would make no defense to charges that she was responsible for the death of her son.

Women take a peculiar and personal pride in a home. It means more to them in many ways than it does to a man. Usually a larger part of their time is spent in the home—one of their particular tasks is that of home-making and house-keeping.

The bride looks forward with fond anticipation to her own home—the matron to the time when the “dream house” with its more spacious rooms and greater conveniences can be realized.

Why not make a special effort this year to gratify this desire on the part of the “partner of your joys and sorrows?” The advertisers whose announcements appear on this page are ready to help you. STRIFE SEEN AS IRISH BOUNDARY MEET COLLAPSES

Ulster Massing Troops Along Free State Border as Conference Fails

By DAVID M. CHURCH
For International News Service.
LONDON, April 26.—A delicate situation containing the possibility of hostilities, has arisen as a result of the breakdown of the Free State-Ulster boundary conference.

It is probable the cabinet will consider the matter within the next few days. Further mediation may be attempted to avert developments fraught with danger of an Irish internal war.

Ulster Hanks Back
Reports were current the cabinet might ask parliament for special legislation to deal with the situation.

England may appoint a member to the boundary commission. The Free State has appointed a representative but the Ulster government has steadfastly refused to have anything to do with the commission.

There is no provision in the Anglo-Irish treaty for meeting such a contingency.

It is expected that the Free State will force the issue by making immediate demand for the setting up and functioning of the boundary commission.

May Lose Territory
Ulster fears that if the commission is put to work on the dispute it will make wholesale transfers of territory from Ulster province to the Free State.

In event Ulster persists in its refusal to accept the commission, the English government's position will be most difficult. Any action the government may take might arouse resentment in either the Free State or Ulster province.

Border Warfare Looms
BELFAST, April 26.—The Ulster government prepared today to mass troops along the Free State frontier to meet any eventuality.

Warning was sent to the British government that the "consequences will be upon its head if any attempt is made to alter the Ulster border."

NEW RECORD FOR INCOME RETURNS

Over 15 Millions Increase Shown in Collector's Report to Bureau

nine months. Collector Goodcell stated that the cost of collecting this huge sum had been a trifle more than one-half of one per cent; to be exact, .0067 per cent. In addition to the collection of taxes, the percentage of cost incurred in the enforcement of numerous Revenue laws that are non-productive so far as revenue is concerned.

An interesting sidelight presented by the report is that while total tax receipts for 1923 were $38,732,914, the collections of the corresponding period of 1922-1923 were but $33,224,114, recording a gain of $5,508,800.

From July 1 to April 1, 1924, income tax collections were $29,422,674 as against $25,172,270 for the same months ending April 1, 1923, an increase of $4,250,404.

"I would like to find a retail business concern with 300,000 customers that makes its collections at a cost of a little over one-half of one per cent," said collector Goodcell.

Directors Vote Down Limit to Membership

Provision that no member real estate board shall enforce an arbitrary numerical limitation on its active membership has just been incorporated into the by-laws of the National Association of Real Estate Boards by vote of its board of directors, meeting at the headquarters of the association, Chicago.

The directors gave final approval to a number of changes in the constitution and by-laws passed on by the national committee of the association at a meeting in Augusta, Georgia, January 17-19.

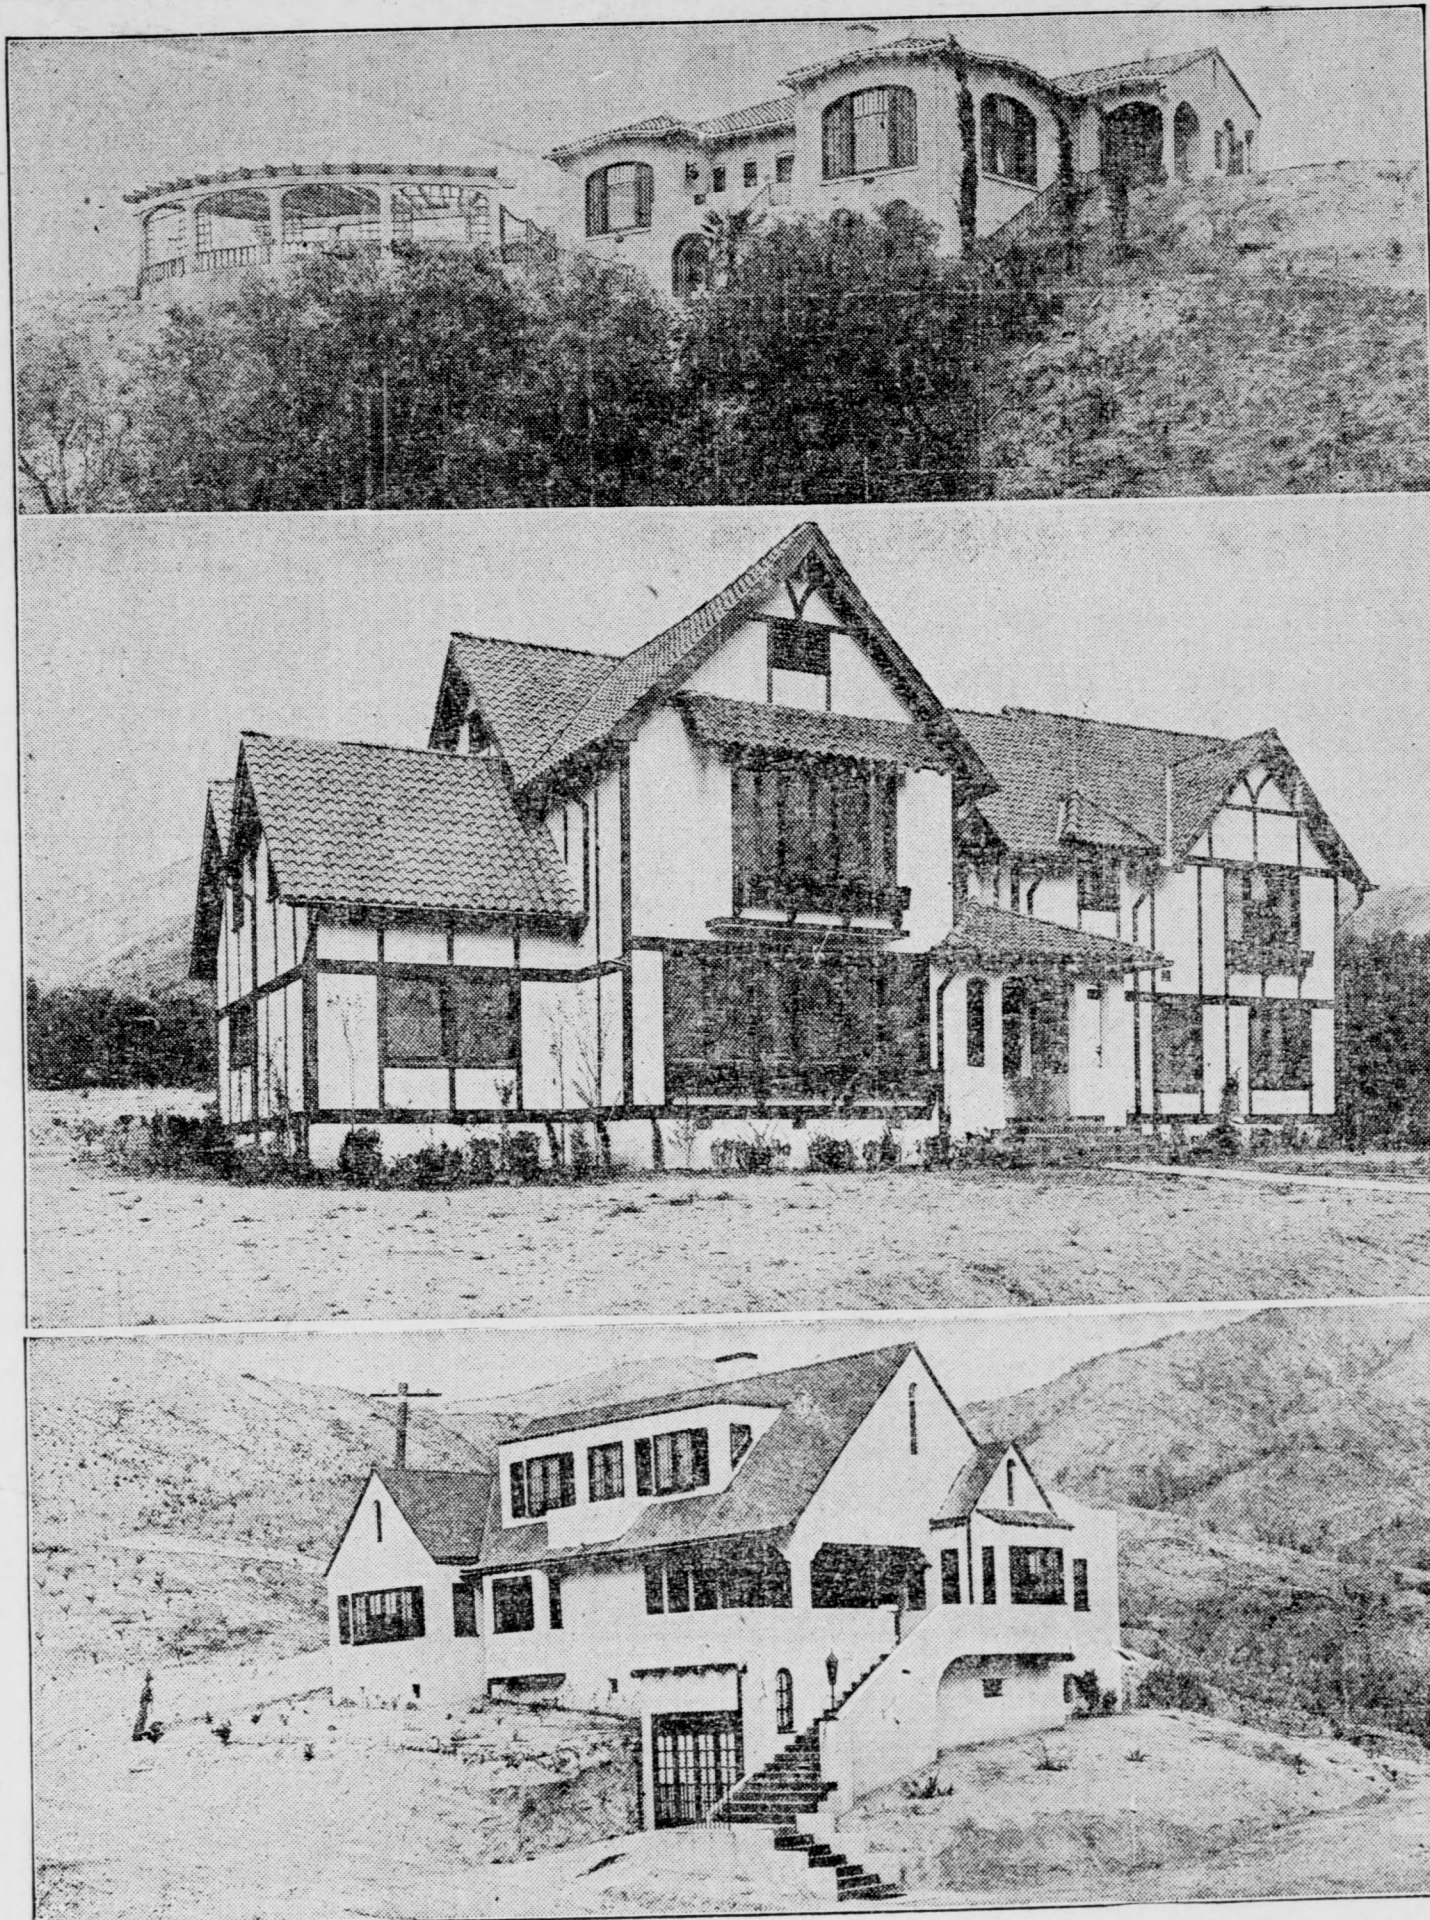

Inasmuch as the national association is engaged in establishing standards for a profession of real estate, and inasmuch as it limits its membership to one board in each city, any limitation on the number of members on the part of member boards other than qualifications of character, business conduct and professional capacity and standing, would be, in effect, limitation on entrance to the profession itself. General Nathan Williams McChesney, of Chicago, general counsel for the association, stated, preceding the directors' action.

While some fifteen real estate boards now have numerical limitation in their by-laws, few of the boards have, as a matter of fact, put the provision into force, representatives of the cities affected reported.

Movement toward synchronizing the membership of the national association and the state associations of real estate boards which exist in a number of states is promoted by a provision for a reciprocal membership arrangement.

Beautiful Montecito Park Homes

Three of the many magnificent residential creations to be found in this wonder tract, are shown herewith. Top, residence of H. E. BARNUM; center, residence of A. J. BISHOP, and lower, EGLEEN TAYLOR'S handsome estate. There is much development work under way on the tract.

By TOM KILLIAN

Written for The Evening News
Glendale's magic business district stretches for seemingly endless blocks and finally peters out into a residential district of beautiful homes set in green trees. Continue north through this section and you come to Verdugo road. Gracefully it winds its way between banks of foliage. Five minutes of this natural beauty, then there is a last bend in the road and as straight as an arrow it cuts through the heart of Sparr Heights.

Sparr Heights! In Glendale, Los Angeles and all Southern California; in fact, it is a name to conjure with. It's a synonym for all that is best in community development—and yet the driver on the Verdugo road two years ago would have found nothing but broad acres of grapes set between the giant hills when he turned that last bend before the straightaway.

Gasp With Delight
To him lacking a sense of the beautiful and lacking sense enough also to perceive the final development of beauty into not unpleasant financial success, the sole comment two years ago would have been an insufficient: "Pretty!"

Even this calloused observer would gasp with delight at the Sparr Heights which has been pressed into being in that short 24 months—the Sparr Heights and its sister section, Montecito Park, and the wonderful Oakmont Country club, where the grape vineyards used to be.

When Southern California in the years to come is one dense city from San Fernando to San Diego, people will be erecting monuments to the foresight that retained some of "the great open spaces" and kept some of nature's beauty untarnished. Sparr Heights is one such and to M. Walters and H. E. Barnum, members of the developing firm of Barnum-Walters company, goes the credit.

Complete Development
For the ordinary subdivider, be it known, it would have been easy to come along and take these 1,500 broad acres stretching up into the Verdugo and San Rafael mountains, cut them up into 50-foot lots, slapped in a bunch of improvements and slashed out all the oaks and laurels and put up a bunch of disfiguring signs and said, "Sale open!"

Not so Barnum-Walters company. They've been at it two years and will be at it three more. They are just as painstaking this morning about the proper curve of a concrete retaining wall along a ment between the national association and such state bodies as incorporate the arrangement in their own constitutions.

beautiful hill road as they were with their first improvements two years ago, and as a result Sparr Heights and Montecito Park have gradually been wrought by hand and brain into an enduring residential suburb that will testify to the integrity and wise care of the developers.

The pictures above are the sample of appreciation that citizens of the Southland have shown for the beauty and finish of Montecito Park. Two of them are homes of men who could probably buy and build anywhere in Los Angeles county, and who probably sought everywhere before they decided to build in Montecito Park as the most beautiful of all.

The third picture is that of the home of H. E. Barnum, a member of the developing firm. It is one of the most beautiful homes in Montecito Park, both as to exterior and setting and also to interior construction and finish. It is significant that both Messrs. Barnum and Walters should choose for their permanent homesites in Southern California estates in their own Sparr Heights and Montecito Park. This is a testimonial of faith in their own project that cannot help but inspire one. Mr. Walters' home, which will be one of Southern California's most unique showplaces, is being rushed to completion. A feature already installed which is attracting many visitors is an open air fireplace of hewed stones, which is a work of art.

Plans Announced for Real Estate Lectures

For newcomers to California, and for real estate operators who have done business under the laws of other states, the course in real estate law offered in Los Angeles by the University of California, has been specially prepared according to the news department of the California Real Estate association.

Marshall F. McComb, a lawyer who has had long experience in real estate transactions, and who lectures on government at the University of California, Southern Branch, will conduct this class. He plans to make the course practical, and will explain the fundamental principles governing the purchase and sale of real property under the California law. He will go extensively into explanations of the title laws, leases, mechanics' liens, the purchase and sale of real property belonging to an estate in process of administration, homesteads and other phases of real estate transactions.

Need Men to Teach Real Estate Courses

The next need in the development of real estate education is the coming of the country for men qualified to present the courses which colleges and schools are giving or are ready to give. That was brought out in a meeting this week of the educational committee of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, held at headquarters of the association, Chicago. The committee is already continuing joint committee representing all the agencies active in introducing real estate preparation into American schools and colleges.

The National Association of Collegiate Schools of Business, the United Y. M. C. A. schools and the Institute for Research in Land Economics of the University of Wisconsin were represented.

Demand for suitable men as instructors in real estate and allied courses is already so great that there are ten calls for every man who can be supplied, according to the experience of the Institute for Research in Land Economics, as reported to the committee by Dr. Richard T. Ely, director. The field for graduate students who can combine the general qualifications of a college instructor with special training in real estate and its allied subjects is a new and growing field, college representatives at the conference brought out. Meanwhile, the history of real estate education in American colleges promises to repeat the history there of the older professions, such as that of law, in drawing its teachers from men in active practice.

Columbia university, the University of Michigan and Northwestern university, as well as the University of Wisconsin are among the institutions of high standing which have signified their intention to make provision, with the opening of the new school year, for the training of graduate students along the lines of the new demand.

The National Association of Real Estate Boards will call the attention of teachers' agencies to the new openings for men with a dual real estate and teaching qualification, letters to be sent out the coming week.

GIBSON IS ELECTED

Goodwin Gibson, of Toronto, Ontario, has been elected president of the Ontario Association of Real Estate Boards. The association has undertaken to employ a full time executive secretary.

$4,000,000 BUDGET FOR STATE ROADS

Improvement of Highways to Call for Expenditure of Immense Sum

ance so that the true cost of each may be determined.

Average Maintenance
For the state as a whole, general maintenance costs average approximately $400 a mile. This is increased to as high as $1,200 a mile for the Sacramento Canyon and $1,500 a mile for the Skyline boulevard, where constant dragging is necessary to keep the roads in condition for travel.

Division V, composed of the counties of Monterey, San Benito, San Luis Obispo, and Santa Barbara, has the lowest average of any of the division with general maintenance costs down as low as $300 per mile.

During the year, new shop buildings will be erected at Lankershim, in Southern California, and new division shops also are planned at Redding, in the North. A warehouse will be built at Bishop, for the new division east of the Sierra, and at numerous locations throughout the state permanent maintenance stations with cottages for the foremen will be erected.

At the head of the maintenance work, is the maintenance engineer at headquarters reporting directly to the state highway engineer. In each of the divisions, one or more engineers have direct charge, under the general direction of the division engineer.

It is claimed by Chairman Harvey M. Toy, of the commission, that the state highways are better maintained today than ever before. It is the purpose of the department to place highway maintenance in California on a permanent basis, and to recruit for this work men who are tried and loyal and who are willing to devote their lives to the protection and upkeep of the state's road system.

INDUSTRIAL DIVISION

The Cleveland Real Estate Board has formed an industrial division. The division has undertaken a survey of the entire industrial situation of the city and will take for its first objective the development of the city's lake front and river harbor.

BUILDING TOTALS OF SIX BILLIONS

Conservative Attitude Urged by Economic Expert in All Business

Business Is Aided
"The helpful effect of present building activities on general business at this time cannot be over-estimated. It means not only employment for millions of men and profitable activities in scores of trades and industries, but it means also the creation of new wealth for the country and the widespread enhancement of property values through improvement. In brief, it means real American progress."

"In view of these beneficial effects on the national business machine, it would indeed be unfortunate if a radical slowing up in construction activities were to ensue this summer."

"It is significant that the activities now going on so extensively are thoroughly national in scope. During a recent Western trip in which I spent some time on the Pacific Coast, I noticed everywhere the same evidences of progress."

"There is still some talk that building costs are too high and that these costs must soon come down. While there will always be fluctuations or times when, due to temporary or local conditions, building costs ease up somewhat, it is to be borne in mind that present price levels are directly affected by such economic factors as labor, taxation, transportation and other important items on which any immediate marked reductions are improbable."

Standards Advance
"Also our constantly advancing standards of living constitute an influence equally as powerful as any purely economic factor. It is a fact, as we all know, that the average prosperous family would not be willing to live today as they lived a few years ago, though at that time they may have felt well satisfied with their surroundings."

"We cannot judge probable conditions of tomorrow merely from the standpoint of the past, because building is always done for the future, never for the past. The buildings now being erected must be made to suit the advancing tendencies of the time. If not, they soon become obsolete and of a correspondingly depreciated value."

"The building industry is perhaps the nation's most accurate index of improved standards of living by the people. It is in the homes that one finds expression given to the universal desire of all persons to live more conveniently, comfortably and efficiently."

Spirit of Progress

"One of the outstanding characteristics of Americans is our spirit of progress. As succeeding generations become better educated and more prosperous there is fostered a corresponding desire to live in more agreeable and comfortable surroundings. Inventions and innovations are constantly being introduced which raise the standards of convenience and efficiency in the average American home."

"These conditions, which have a most pronounced effect both on building costs and activities, were never more apparent than today. To my mind this is a factor that will continue to influence building tendencies, because it is a fundamental of human nature."

Minnesota Realtors To List Descriptions

A public information bureau on all matters concerning rural lands in the state, whether farm or lake shore properties, is to be organized by the Minnesota Realty Association this spring as the first step in its 1924 program to awaken interest in land settlement in the state. The executive secretary of the state association will be in charge.

A survey of all types of land in every county in the state has already been started as a basis for the bureau's information. It is planned to chart and map land in the state by county, price, use, crops and markets, and make this information accessible to all tourists and visitors and to all prospective buyers. Dealers' names also will be supplied.

The program of the association for the year, adopted at its annual convention just closed, includes closer co-operation between real estate boards in urban and in rural territory, and centering of effort on state taxation economy. The association endorses in substance the "Indiana plan," giving a state board of tax commissioners reviewing power and veto power on all state and local bond issues and tax levies as a check on local extravagance or possible corruption in public expenditure.

A bill embodying the general principle of tax review, worked out in Indiana and endorsed by the National Association of Real Estate Boards, is expected to come before the Minnesota Legislature at its next session.

PRIZE FOR BEST AD

A prize of $100 is offered by the homebuilders and subdividers' division of the National Association of Real Estate Boards for the best advertisement of homes or subdivisions. A second prize of $50 is also to be awarded. Bert L. Clogston, of Los Angeles, vice-president of the division, is offering the prize.

City Of Los Angeles Is Fourth In Building Done During Month Of March

Los Angeles was fourth among the cities of the United States in building for the month of March, 1924. Detroit stepped ahead of Los Angeles with a total of $17,704,688, about $425,000 greater than that for Los Angeles. San Francisco was tenth in the list, Portland fourteenth, Oakland sixteenth, Long Beach, Calif., twenty-first and Seattle twenty-fourth.

A new high record was set for building for the month of March in the cities of the U. S. Reports from 213 cities show a total of 76,477 permits issued with an estimated valuation of $419,043,491. For the same month of 1923 the number of permits was 71,286 and the estimated valuation $397,528,644. For February, 1924, 209 cities reported a total of $264,052,184.

New York City with its five boroughs rolled up a total of $188,627,232 for March, a gain of nearly $40,000,000 over March a year ago, $109,046,497 for February and $76,061,933 for January of the current year. Considering its population, Los Angeles has done an amazing volume of building, but nothing approaching that contemplated in New York City, which reports a total for March equal to 45 per cent of the total for all cities reporting operations for the month.

If all the construction planned for New York goes ahead, the builders of that city have reason to be apprehensive over the ability of the industry to handle it, even with the wonderful resources at their command. In Los Angeles there is not one building project in a thousand abandoned after a permit is issued. It is said that permits are taken out for many promotion projects in New York which never go ahead. If that is true it would be interesting to know just what proportion of its enormous building total means actual construction.

Forty-nine cities report building amounting to a million dollars or more for March, as compared with thirty-seven for February. Following is a list of these cities from which official returns were received by the American Contractor:

Co-operation Between Realtor, Public Urged

Calvin Coolidge, president of the United States, brings out the mutuality of concern which must prevail between the public and the interests represented by realtor organizations united in the National Association of Real Estate Boards, particularly in regard to taxation adjustment, in a letter written in response to a recent invitation from the New York Real Estate board. The letter appeals to realtors for their support and co-operation in all efforts to lessen the public charges against property, business and incomes.

"The ownership and development of real property," President Coolidge states, "is the greatest single material interest of the community. It is particularly concerned with everything that involves taxation, because real property has always the poorest chance of escaping or minimizing the taxation burden. Whatever tends to increase the public impositions is calculated to add to the difficulty of developing properties and to the costs of real, living and conducting business.

"It is not safe to assume that charges of this kind can always, and to an indefinite extent, be passed on to the public. There must come a time when the public cannot absorb them without a positive injury to production, building and the broadest interests of the community."

"The members of your organization are in a position to understand all of this complex question. I am sure they will all agree that nothing could give a more prompt or effective interest to business and confidence than the assurance of reduction in public charges and of a permanent policy of the utmost moderation in this regard."

A human skull was found in the ceiling of a New York tenement recently. We always heard those places were crowded, but never supposed the occupants had to stick their heads through the ceiling.

HORSES IMMUNE FROM PLAGUE IS THORPE'S REPORT

Hundreds of Animals Being Shipped North from Tia Juana Track

Horses are practically immune from the foot and mouth disease and cannot possibly contract it unless they have been kept in contact with infected cattle, declares J. R. Thorpe, proprietor of the Oakmont Saddle Stables, Ocean View avenue and Waltonia drive, Montrose, adding that not one single case of the disease has been found in any riding academy of the state, nor has a single trace of the infection been located among saddle horses, though rigid examinations have been made.

In fact, hundreds of horses are being shipped north from San Diego county, states Mr. Thorpe, who has just returned from a buying trip through the county and into Tia Juana, following the close of the racing season. A number of these fine mounts he has bought will presently be seen at the Oakmont Saddle Stables, where they will be a valuable addition to the extensive string he now maintains.

Horses Immune

"Quarantine conditions are not nearly so stringent in the southern counties as they are here," says Mr. Thorpe. "Particularly as regards horses, the officials down there understand the situation well enough to know that horses do not contract or carry the disease under ordinary circumstances. Being a country of horses and horsemen, they would naturally know more about it than in the northern counties."

"In general, horses are permitted to travel over any state highway or county road, so long as they do not invade quarantined territories, and as a result the riding academies of the state are doing a practically normal business. The Oakmont Saddle Stables share in this general healthy condition and our horses are in daily use."

Griffith Park Closed By Quarantine Board

LOS ANGELES, April 26.—Griffith park, popular for golfers, motorists and hikers, has been ordered closed to the public by federal authorities in charge of the fight against the foot and mouth disease here. Several hundred golfers in the park at the time the edict went into effect were ordered from the greens.

CALLS JAPANESE CRISIS ECONOMIC

Former Government Official Advises Nippons Their Problem Internal

TOKIO, April 26.—Pointing out that the present crisis in Japan is economic rather than a result of the immigration exclusion measure in the United States, Dr. James F. Abbott, former American commercial attaché and now representing the American Silk association, in an address made before the Japanese and American members of the Pan-Pacific Union, called on Japanese business men to "put their house in order to solve their industrial problems by efficiency instead of borrowing money."

"The problem Japan is facing is internal, not external," Abbott declared. "Japan has not yet solved her transition from a state of feudalism to modern industrialism."

"The United States claims no inborn superiority, but America has solved her own problems," Professor Mitsukame Hori of the Commercial university, quoted Lincoln's address in support of his contention of the necessity of acceptance of all races on equality.

LOBBYISTS WILL BOOST DAM BILL

Irrigation District Sends Three Men to Capital To Aid Passage

EL CENTRO, Cal., April 26.—The Imperial irrigation district late yesterday authorized Mark Rose, Elmer Heald and F. W. Greer to leave at once for Washington to further the Boulder dam legislation. All of these men have been at Washington on the same mission before, and are thoroughly conversant with the red tape.

Now that amendments are being proposed to the Swing-Johnson bill, it was deemed best to have men on the job familiar with the whole history of the legislation.

RICH LAD MODEST

Godfrey S. Rockefeller, son of the late William G. Rockefeller, who recently married Helen Gratz of St. Louis, is starting life as the head of the family on $20 a week earned as a bank clerk at Albany, N. Y., and he says he is accepting no further funds from any place until he proves he can maintain his wife on his earnings. His greatest worry just now is the publicity of it, which may cost him his job.

Scaramouche

LEWIS STONE, in the role of the wicked Marquis de la Four d'Azay, in Rex Ingram's great Metro production, "Scaramouche."

Lewis Stone, who will be seen at the Glendale theatre in "Scaramouche," starting Sunday, April 27, is a veteran actor and a veteran soldier. Stone served in two wars. In 1898, as a boy he went to Cuba with the Twelfth New York Volunteer Infantry; in 1917 he got his commission as an infantry captain at the first Plattsburg camp.

He had no intention whatever of being an actor, but when a friend of his who played in a Toronto stock company fell ill, he stepped in for him, and when the friend returned and Stone was free to go back to his own line of work, he was offered other roles in other companies. Taking the stage seriously at last, he became a "trouper," and soon had appeared in many important parts in New York City and elsewhere.

Enters Pictures
After a successful career on the stage he entered the motion pictures and finally became associated with Rex Ingram, appearing in that famous film, "The Prisoner of Zenda."

He next played the villain in "Trifling Women," also a Rex Ingram production. Here he was the hard-hearted Marquis de la Four, whose revenge took a terrible form.

And now in "Scaramouche" Mr.

JAPAN READY TO FOLLOW U. S. LEAD

Conference on Immigration Urged as Solution of Problem, Report

TOKIO, April 26.—Japan is prepared to send joint high commission members and otherwise follow any suggestions of the United States in reaching a solution of the immigration question.

This declaration was made in unofficial but close sources to the foreign office today following receipt in Tokio of news that President Coolidge was desirous of modifying the stringent exclusion action of congress.

Viscount Kaneko, Prince Tokugawa and Ambassador Hanhara will probably be Japan's choice for membership on such a commission.

Ready to Compromise
It is generally agreed that Japan is prepared to enter such a conference in a yielding mood providing it is held.

The foreign office expressed gratification at President Coolidge's stand in the matter and Japanese and American circles here were distinctly more hopeful following publication of Washington dispatches this morning reporting President Coolidge's attitude.

FEDERAL MEN TO AID PLAGUE WAR

Governor Agrees to Allow Government to Help Fight Disease

WASHINGTON, April 26.—Governor Richardson of California has agreed to permit the federal government to enter his state and take charge of the fight against the foot and mouth disease. Secretary of Agriculture Wallace announced while attending a conference at the White House between President Coolidge and the delegation of Californians headed by C. C. Tague, personal representative of the governor.

Stone is again the romantic actor, and once again he plays a marquis. This nobleman, although a villain, is an heroic one, and quite wins the sympathy of the audience when he stalks through the fire-torn streets of Paris while the wild mobs search for royal victims.

Diet and Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M.D.
Author of Diet and Health, with Key to the Calories

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS

Release Saturday, April 26, 1924.

"Dear Doctor: Do you think the following dream shows suppressed desire? I dreamed last night that my daughter had a box of chocolate creams. She bit into a big chocolate filled with nuts, but not finding it to her taste, laid it down on a plate. I came along, picked it up and had it all eaten when I remembered that candy was fearfully high in calories. I was trying to figure out how many of 'em I had eaten and had decided to fast the rest of the day, when my alarm clock called me.

"I have lost 10 pounds since I started the reduction course 21 days ago, thanks to you.—Mrs. C."

Yes, your dream does undoubtedly denote suppressed desire. I wish all dreams were as easy to interpret. It is quite common, while dieting, to dream of the foods you like best. You can have the most glorious banquets during your sleep. I was talking recently with a friend who had been on an exploring trip in the South Seas. He told me that his party was without food for two weeks or so, and it was quite common for all the men to dream of food, and they felt that they were actually less hungry after such dreams. Mabel so. At any rate, if you want to reduce, the best way to eat chocolate creams is in your dreams.

Mrs. H.—We have an article on acidosis which you may have by sending a stamped, addressed envelope with your request for it.

J.—I believe an exclusive milk diet—the so-called milk-cure—is a very wonderful thing for many chronic diseases, but it does not cure venereal diseases, so don't pin your faith to it for that. If you are 20 pounds overweight, you can reduce on the milk diet if you do not take sufficient to supply your caloric or energy needs. If you take skim milk—one quart is 320 C—you can take four quarts a day or perhaps five, if you are tall, and still reduce.

There are some books on the milk cure which I can recommend if you are not in a position to go to an institution, or to be personally supervised by a physician.

"Dear Doctor: I should weigh 138. I am far under it. How many calories should I eat per day?"

"My baby, five years old, is flat footed, as a result of rickets. Can I do anything to right them now? I am feeding him according to your articles and I have the soles and heels of his shoes raised on the inside. He is very thin and is gaining slowly and is getting a little more self-confident since I have started feeding him right. My second baby is nine months old and right up to the mark, thanks to you.—P. L. J.

It is difficult to say how many calories a person may need, because the number varies with the size, weight, age activities, etc. In general, for an adult, 15 to 20 calories for every pound of normal weight daily. Of course, in order to gain you must have sufficient calories to not only supply your activities, internal and external, but to have some left over to be stored away for reserve fat. Compute the number of calories you are taking and gradually increase them until you are on the gaining diet.

All infants, apparently, have flat feet on account of the pad of fat on the soles, and also because the muscles have not been used in walking and so have not drawn the arches up. Your baby's feet especially as you are feeding him correctly now, will probably be all right after he begins to walk more. You can massage his feet and also give them the following gentle exercises:

First: Have him sit in front of you and hold his feet in your hand. Grasp the ankle firmly behind the heel. Then with the other hand bend the toes downward, then turn the foot upward and inward, making a circle. Second: Give a strong upward push on the sole of the foot, holding the heel firmly. Do not do this exercise too strenuously at first.

Nothing gives me more happiness than the letters telling me that children have been benefited by my advice. Thank you for writing, Mrs. L.

My Dear Followers—When sending for material which we offer you, please remember to enclose a stamped envelope bearing full name and address. The pamphlet on reducing and gaining is the only one of which you must enclose four cents in stamps extra. Address your letters to me in care of the paper. Make them as brief as possible, not over 200 words, and type or write them legibly with ink.

Please sign your name as evidence of good faith—we will not use it in any way. Remember it is impossible for me to give you individual advice. The questions you ask will be answered in the column as soon as possible, if they are of general interest. Don't forget the S. & S. if you expect me to send you the

'Strictly Business' Blamed

This is a picture of MRS. ALICE WALLACE. She is being sued for $250,000 for alienating the affections, according to the charge, of another woman's husband. She makes a denial.

"Strictly business" got Harry S. Bradstreet and Mrs. Alice F. Wallace of Boston into trouble. Mrs. Bradstreet is suing Mrs. Wallace for $250,000, charging alienation of the affections of her husband. Bradstreet admits that he was in the company of Mrs. Wallace often, but for business reasons, pure and simple.

DO THEY?

Dear Mrs. Thompson:—Do the fine, worth-while men honestly admire and love the girls who are not careful? I mean the girls who act without restraint; the girls who will turn and follow strange men with daring, inviting eyes; who will drink with them and tell stories with crude climaxes; the girls who act as if they are trying to give the impression that there is no limit to anything?

I know several of this type and men always notice them, and some of them tell the girls how wonderful they are and what adorable they are. When I am with these "pals," I feel so old-fashioned and uninteresting because I never could get their new viewpoint and I would feel so embarrassed if men talked to me in that insincere way.

I love a good time, but it seems that my idea of a good time is very "queer" because none of the girls seem to mind the atmosphere which is created in a party where men, drinking and doubtful stories are the chief attractions.

Will you please enlighten me? I can safely say that the kind of man you would consider worth while would be repulsed by the girls you mention. Girls who are cheap and too free with themselves attract men lacking in self-respect and respect for women. Don't let yourself get a "better-have to make this test at home); if the rug is an imitation you will catch the smell of chloride of lime which was used in bleaching it. Then, too, a genuine Oriental antique rug will be hard and shiny on the back, from years of rubbing on floors—just as an office worker's wool suit becomes hard and shiny from rubbing against desk or chair. Also, an old rug is usually more closely made, with knots tighter and closer together than on a modern rug.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Kirkman in care of the "Efficient Housekeeping" department will be answered in these columns in their turn, however, owing to the great number received. than-thou" attitude, but, on the other hand, do not become discouraged by yourself because you seem so old-fashioned. Fortunately there are a lot of girls and women in the world who do not attract much attention because they are not seeking it. But when self-respecting men look for companions, they prefer women with whom they are not ashamed to be seen and who are not eternally trying to attract the attention of other men. Keep your ideals, but, as I have said before, guard against a feeling that you are superior because you are blessed with refinement and good taste.

GIRLS DON'T LIKE HIM

Dear Mrs. Thompson:—My greatest trouble is that I cannot get along with the girls. I am 16 years old, in my second year at high school, and not very good-looking. It seems that after I know a girl awhile she turns me down flat. I take them to shows, dances and ice cream parlors. I think my greatest trouble is about conversation. I cannot speak in an interesting way, not enough for them. Please advise me.

K. Y. W.

My dear boy, you are very young and it is only natural that you should not be a success with girls just yet. Probably the girls you go with have chances to go with older boys as well and they prefer them to you. Do not let this worry you, because only too soon you will be one of the older boys yourself. You can do much to improve your conversational powers if you observe more and read. Watch what it is that other people talk about, and then, if only through imitation, you can do much to enliven what you have to say. Also if you exert your imagination you can think of things to say. Conversation is an art, but it can be cultivated by the person who is willing to make a study of it. Be neat, courteous and thoughtful of others and you will go a long way in working yourself into the hearts of people—girls as well as the rest.

HIGH SCHOOL GIRL PROBLEMS

Two high school girls wrote me today, both about the same age, an oddity from schools in cities not ten miles apart. One blushes easily and "all the time" she says; the other says she has lost her self-confidence and cannot do her lessons. Self-consciousness, lack of self-confidence, and the self-awkwardness that sends the blood rushing to one's face—all these are the ills that peculiarly afflict the girl from 13 to 17 or 18.

Why? Well, Havelock Ellis, Freud, Young, Jones, Russell and dozens of other "high-brow" writers have done chapters of reasoning on the subject. The high school girl will be less interested in the reason why than in the cure. But it's easier to reason about than to cure, that's the worst of it!

For the girl that blushes so much, feeling the eyes of the world upon her, I would only say this. Her form of self-consciousness is a form of egotism, she feels the world is looking at her critically. "It isn't, it isn't looking at her at all! If she could get that firmly in mind, I believe she would blush less. And when it does look and catches her blushing, no doubt it likes her for it.

In the middle days of the last century, it was fashionable (and genteel and ladylike and all that sort of thing) both to faint and to blush. Poets extolled blushes and no young girl ever tried to hide her reddening cheeks, she liked them. If my young friend will only remember that, and these people don't change much from generation to generation, she will be reconciled to her blushes and not mind them. And then she'll blush less!

The problem of no self-confidence is worse, for if it goes on, it may ruin a girl's whole career. I would suggest she specialize on one subject she likes best, be an expert on that, and confidence will come.

Little One—With brown eyes, light golden hair and a pale skin, your most becoming colors will be all shades of brown, cardinal, rose, yellow, and bright or very dark blue. At 16 years, height five feet, three inches, weight should be between 110 and 115 pounds.

Goldie—If you use a cream made from fine vegetable oils it will not cause hair to grow on your face. The articles you mention are all trade preparations, so I do not know what they contain.

Sheila—After the pores have become enlarged it will take some time to improve them, but the effect will show all the time. The best thing is the full daily warm bath. This so relieves the pores of the complexion through clearing the entire skin, that the pores of face begin at once to improve through having less work to do. End every facial treatment by dashing very cold water over the skin, or by an ice rub, and after persistent effort of this kind, the pores will contract and the whole texture of the skin will be refined.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes, in care of the "Beauty Chats" department, will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So, if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question.—The Editor.

From Book Of Life

BOOKS

Thomas Carlyle is not needed to tell that "Adolescence to young men and to all men—are very seldom much valued." Nor that "There is a great deal of advising, and very little faithful performing."

Almost everyone knows that. Carlyle, whose typically English essays are even more readable than his memorable "French Revolution," decided that talk that does not end in any kind of action is better suppressed altogether. Nevertheless he once gave advice to college students, in an address at the University of Edinburgh.

A part of what he told them is of interest to all who are troubled by the problem of what to read.

"The most unhappy of all men is the man that cannot tell what he is going to do, that has got no work cut out for him in the world, and does not go into it. For work is the grand cure of all maladies and miseries that ever beset mankind—honest work, which you intend getting done.

"If you are in a strait a very good indication as to choice—perhaps the best you could get—is a book you have a great curiosity about. You are then in the readiest and best of all possible conditions to improve by that book. It is analogous to what doctors tell us about the physical health and appetites of the patient. You must learn to distinguish between false appetite and real.

"There is such a thing as a false appetite, which will lead a man into vagaries with regard to diet, will tempt him to eat spicy things which he should not eat at all, and would not but that it is toothsome. A man ought to inquire and find out what he really and truly has an appetite for—what suits his constitution; and that doctors tell him is the very thing he ought to have in general.

"And so with books.

"As applicable to almost all of you, I will say that it is highly expedient to go into history—to inquire into what has passed before you in the families of men. The history of the Romans and Greeks will first of all concern you; and you will find that all the knowledge you have got will be extremely applicable to elucidate that. There you have the most remarkable race of men in the world set before you, to say nothing of the languages. . . . And you will find, if you read well, two extremely remarkable nations shining in the records left by themselves as a kind of pillar to light up life in the darkness of the past ages; and it will be well worth your while if you can get into the understanding of what these people were and what they did. You will find a great deal of hearsay, as I have found, that does not touch on the matter; but perhaps some of you will get to see a Roman face to face; you will know in some measure how they contrived to exist, and to perform these feats in the world; I believe, also, you will find a thing not much noted, that there was a great deal of deep religion in its form in both nations."

Carlyle pointed out to them that there are two kinds of books. "When a man is reading on any kind of subject, in most departments of books—in all books, if you take it in a wide sense—you will find that there is a division of good books and bad books. . . . IT CASTS ASIDE altogether the idea that people have that if they are reading any book—that if an ignorant man is reading any book, he is doing rather better than nothing at all. . . .

"It would be much safer and better would he have no concern with books at all than with some of them. . . .

"I conceive that books are like men's souls—divided into sheep and goats. Some of them are calculated to be of very great advantage in teaching—in forwarding the teaching of all generations. Others are going down, doing more and more, wilder and wilder mischief."

Uncle Wiggily Bedtime Stories

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S BREAD AND JAM

When Uncle Wiggily hopped out of his hollow stump bungalow one bright sunny morning, Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy said to him: "You had better take a little lunch with you when you go adventuring today, Mr. Longears."

"Why so?" asked the bunny rabbit gentleman.

"Because," answered his muskrat lady housekeeper, "I am going to have company soon. A number of the animal ladies are coming to stay to lunch and I know you don't want to be bothered with them. So if you took some lunch with you—say a carrot sandwich and a bit of turnip cake—you wouldn't have to come home. You could stay out in the woods and fields until night. By that time the ladies will have gone home."

"Thank you. It's a great idea I'll do it!" said Mr. Longears. "As you say, I don't want to be around when the ladies are filled with lunch. I'd better keep out of the way."

"I'll put up a little lunch," kindly offered the muskrat lady housekeeper which she did.

With his turnip cake and carrot sandwiches in his pocket, Uncle Wiggily hopped over the fields and through the woods looking on every side for an adventure.

But adventures seemed rather scarce that day. The only one the rabbit gentleman could see was an April shower. The sun went under a cloud, the sky grew dark and soon the rain drops came pelted down.

"And I didn't bring an umbrella!" cried Uncle Wiggily. "My pink nose will get wet, it may shrink like a flannel sweater and then I can't twinkle it! I must look for shelter."

Not far away grew a big toadstool, and Uncle Wiggily hopped under this until the April shower had passed. Sitting on a little stone beneath the toadstool, Uncle Wiggily began to feel hungry.

"It is nearly noon," he said. "I shall eat the lunch Nurse Jane put up for me, and then I shall hop on to look for more adventures."

Uncle Wiggily ate his lunch slowly twinkling his pink nose now and then to keep it from shrinking, and as he dropped crumbs on the ground, little ant boys and girls crawled out to eat them. Uncle Wiggily was kind to the ants.

"And I shone again, and the rabbit gentleman was about to hop on, when a voice cried: "Oh, Uncle Wiggily, have you anything more to eat? I'm so hungry! Please give me something!"

The rabbit looked down and saw Bully No-Tail, one of the frog boys, hopping up out of the goldfish pond near by.

"Alas, Bully, I have nothing left! I ate it all!" said the bunny. "Haven't you any bread and jam?" asked Bully. "I'm so hungry for bread and jam!"

"No, I haven't any," Uncle Wiggily answered. "But I'll get some for you, Bully. Come on, we'll hop to my bungalow. Nurse Jane has company, but I can hop in the back way, go in the pantry, get you some bread and jam and get will never know it if I don't make any noise."

"Oh, goodie!" croaked Bully, clapping his paws happily. "I love bread and jam."

Uncle Wiggily hopped along over the fields and through the woods, and Bully hopped with him until they were near the hollow stump bungalow. The bunny told the frog boy to hide in the bushes and wait.

"I'll slip in the back way and get you some bread and jam," promised Uncle Wiggily. Once in his bungalow he could hear the animal ladies talking to Nurse Jane. "I don't want them to know

At Local Theatres

THE GLENDALE THE GATEWAY

"Hook and Ladder," Hoot Gibson's latest comedy-drama for Universal, shows at the Glendale Theatre for the last times today. In this production, he is a cowboy who came to town with a number of other plainmen with a big trainload of cattle. Things didn't seem to go right with the boys after they arrived, and their pay was held up by the ship-

From then on, things "commence to begin" with a vengeance. Hoot becomes a fireman and has a romance.

The rival for the fair lady's hand is a tricky ward heeler, but Hoot surmounts all difficulties and wins out after making a daring rescue through almost impassable flames, in one of the most spectacular fire scenes ever screened for local audiences.

Starting Sunday, "Scarabouche," Rex Ingram's massive new Metro production that is the talk of America, comes to the Glendale Theatre for a five-day run. "Superb," "truly a great picture," "an outstanding production," is the way the critics have greeted it.

AND NO WONDER!
This one is rather antiquated, but men still delight in telling it: The old sea captain was surrounded at the tea party, to which his wife had dragged him, much against his will, by a group of women pestering him for a story from his adventures. Finally, at the end of his patience, he began: "Once I was shipwrecked on the coast of South America, and there I came across a tribe of wild women, who had no tongues."

"Mercy," exclaimed all the fair listeners with one voice. "But they couldn't talk."

"That," snapped the old sea captain, "was what made them wild."

BELIEVE IN SIGNS
A small storekeeper, much to the astonishment of his neighbors, suddenly decorated his shop window with a gorgeous new blind. It was the sensation of the day, and few of his brethren failed to make some remark to him about it.

"Nice blind you've got there, Isaac," said one.
"How much did it cost you, Isaac?"

"It didn't cost me anything, Aaron. My customers paid for it."

"What! Your customers paid for it?"

"Yes, Aaron. I put a leaded box on my counter 'For the Blind,' and they paid for it."

HONOLULU, April 26.—Belief that future generations may be able to study the activities of possible inhabitants of the planets by means of wireless photography was expressed by George A. Taylor, noted scientist and member of the Association for Developing Wireless in Australia, New Zealand and Fiji, who spoke recently before the Pan-Pacific Union of this city.

Taylor, who is considered one of the leading authorities on wireless in the world, has been interested for many years in the development of the radio sketch, or radio photography, and has achieved some remarkable results, including the sending of natural color photographs by wireless.

"Because of the infinite character of wireless," he said, "it is within the range of human possibilities to predict that future generations may some day learn of the activities of people who are said to inhabit distant planets millions of miles away from the globe on which we live."

Arsenic, spread on the trunks of trees on which they forage, is being used in the Kona districts, Island of Hawaii, to lessen the wild goat nuisance, which is extremely serious on the ranches there. Senator Robert Hind has been making extensive experiments as to the best methods of exterminating goats and has decided that the arsenic method is most practicable. Senator Hind is manager of the large Puuwaawaa ranch in North Kona, and it is estimated that there are not less than 20,000 goats ravaging the neighborhood. There are probably 60,000 in the wild goats in the whole territory. An appropriation was made by the last legislature to encourage experiments in ridding the islands of the goat nuisance.

Peter Hose, Honolulu's "hula cop," who has caused thousands of tourists to laugh at his clowny antics as he directed traffic through the downtown thoroughfares, has been "promoted" from the "stop and go" job to a position as waterfront policeman. Peter will now direct the tourists as they set foot on Hawaiian soil, and there is little doubt that a few weeks of acquaintance with the new surroundings will set him "hula-ing" as of yore. Indeed, when the white-suited Hawaiian band strikes up the strains of "Honolulu Tomboy" or "Hula Blues" the tourists in or sail away, no one who knows Peter Hose would rightfully expect him to make those arms and legs behave.

LONDON, April 26.—Tragedy seems to be sweeping into the English theatre.

Grand Guignol plays, unpleasant dramas and melodramas are in their hey-day in the West End theatrical district.

The English playgoer, who since the war has wanted only to laugh, is now seeking plays where his feelings may be harrowed, and where he can sit squirming in his seat in the midst of unpleasant nerve tinglys.

Three plays now listed among the successes in the West End are "Havoc," "The Conquering Hero" and "The Fake." All three are harrowing dramas, which call for strong men to play the male leads.

"Havoc" and "The Conquering Hero" are war plays. In both there is a fine satire of the futility of war and portrayal of its horrors. Shell-shocked soldiers, appearing on the stage in their pitiable ravings and nerve-racked moments, give both of these plays a distinctly unpleasant taste.

"The Fake," by Frederick Lonsdale, which is soon to be produced in the United States, centers about a drug fiend, a man whose character is gradually being broken down by drink and drug. The theme of the play centers around the question of the mortality of permitting such a man to live, and as he runs through the play displaying a canny, drug-inspired cruelty, growing more and more maniacal, emotions are aroused to a high pitch in the audience, and each curtain brings a welcome relief to a nervous tensity.

"The Fake" has brought into the limelight a new star and given an old one new opportunities for brilliancy.

Franklyn Bellamy had been playing small roles successfully until he was given the part of the drug fiend in "The Fake." He has handled this difficult part with such artistry that he is now being touted as one of the best of the younger English actors.

Godfrey Tearle, brother of Con-way Tearle, who is known to American motion-picture enthusiasts, has long been rated a star, but he has been unfortunate in not having a really stellar role for some time. In "The Fake" Tearle has an admirable role, a part to which he is suited. It is his task to play opposite the drug fiend, and he eventually kills the fiend for the sake of society. Tearle's easy and natural acting in this part is one of his best performances.

Although Tearle has been rated a matinee idol, despite the fact that he is abnormally modest and retiring, and the theatregoers see or hear little of him off stage, he has just experienced a new sensation.

At a recent performance an enthusiastic woman admirer in a front row orchestra seat, threw something on the stage at Tearle's feet. It was found to be a diamond ring. Tearle returned the ring and announced that if any other admirers wish to bestow motor cars upon him he would prefer that they be left at the stage door.

Society's latest contribution to the London stage is Elizabeth Ponsonby, daughter of Arthur Ponsonby, Under Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, a former page to Queen Victoria. Miss Ponsonby plays a "walking on part," with Justine Johnson, in "Polly Preferred," and also understudies a part. Miss Ponsonby has had some experience with the Nottingham Repertory Players, but this is her first part in London, where she has recently been attracting attention as a fashion mannequin.

George Bernard Shaw must be disappointed. His "St. Joan" has won nothing but universal praise from the English critics, and there hasn't been a single opportunity for Shaw to enter into controversy over the play or its merits. Probably Shaw is so disappointed that he is writing another play which will guarantee controversy.

"St. Joan" will probably have a record run. The seat sale is far in advance.

In the musical theatre the greatest sensation at present is provided by the "Eighteen Gertrude Hotman Girls" from New York. The dancing and acrobatics of these young ladies is amazing and amusing London.

BURBANK RESOLUTION FOR SEWER IS PASSED

Authority Is Given by Bond
Act of 1911; Forward
Stride of City

With the passage by the Burbank City trustees of a resolution of intention to construct a sewer system under the bond act of 1911, this municipality takes a long leap ahead in the race for industries. The resolution was passed after a year of rocky traveling that was over a road beset with natural and hand-placed obstacles.

This very important action means vastly more to Burbank residents than just the fact that cesspools will not always have to be dug, which is an extra expense for all who build. It means surer sanitation and it means that now Burbank may invite industries here with the full assurance that it can guarantee them a sewer in a few months, and this is a big factor for every industry looking for a business location. Building and greater general prosperity for Burbank will follow in the wake of the sewer, it is believed, and so there may well be rejoicing in the hearts of all citizens.

Name New Engineer
Arthur J. Rose, well known locally, has been named to succeed P. Curt Miller as city engineer. He is given a retainer fee of $50 a month as payment for general oversight of the engineering necessities of the city and will be allowed a certain percentage, the exact per cent to be decided upon later, for the engineering features connected with the street improvement work. This will be paid out of the incidental expense fund which is included in all improvement assessments.

W. E. French has been placed at the head of the public utilities department, this being separated from the engineering department by the City Trustees at their last meeting. Mr. French will have supervisory charge of the light and water departments under the designation of Superintendent of Public Utilities. He will receive a salary of $200 per month.

Building to Rise
The proceedings intended to prevent erection of the store building by Ben Cohen on Santa Anita avenue have been dropped by the nearby property owners, and a petition signed by twenty of them has been presented to the City Trustees asking that condemnation proceedings be called off. The building will therefore rise, as originally planned.

It is understood that cost of condemnation proceedings halted action. The claim of the property owners is that Mr. Cohen is building his store in the middle of the street.

EAGLE ROCK SCHOOL CHILDREN PRESENT PAGEANT

'Idylls of Spring' Given by 500 Under Direction of Mrs. Harrison

Elfin figures, flowers, birds, butterflies and story book characters figured last night in a brilliant world of make-believe within the auditorium of the Eagle Rock school, when 500 local children presented "Idylls of Spring" under the direction of Mrs. Anne Harrison, past Eagle Rock Parent-Teacher association president, who wrote the story. The gorgeous production will be presented again at 8 o'clock tonight, April 26.

To Mrs. C. D. Wentworth goes the credit for the beautiful costumes of the children, which ranged the fair spectrum and borrowed hues from all the flower kingdom. Surrounded by these lovely flowers, with gauzy butterflies in vari-hued wings fluttering here and there, peacocks and even parrots, the Goddess of Spring makes her entry, followed by her attendants, April, May and June. The most pleasing scene in the whole pageant, it is asserted, is the wedding of the Lily and the Rose. In this scene the bride wears a snowy veil of lilies of the valley. Girls of the eighth grade will appear in the quaint Mistress Mary costumes carrying pots of mystic dew. Also there will be the sunbonnet babies, chicks, Easter bunnies and gardeners. Pupils of the kindergarten will give a maypole dance.

A clever prologue precedes the pageant. Heralds will make the announcements.

Act 2 carries with it a note of patriotism, international, for there will be national flowers from all over the world represented by the girls in costume. A chorus of more than half a hundred boys will sing the national anthems of many foreign countries, as well as America.

The finale will be a glorious ensemble of all the children in a grand march and the singing of "America for Me." The boys' chorus numbers are said to be the most striking to be presented in a school production.

Slay Sherwood Herd
The thirty-seven cows and two heifers belonging to Charles H. Sherwood of Eagle Rock road were shot by government officials when it was found they were in close proximity to two others herds, both infected.

The government will make reparation to stock holders who have undergone losses in this effort to stamp out the infection. Mr. Sherwood will receive about two-thirds of the approximate value of the cows, he estimates. They are appraised at about $150 each.

After the cows had been shot by the expert marksmen deputized by the government for the work of exterminating infected herds and those likely to be infected, the barns were torn down and burned, while the hay, grain and everything else that might hold or carry the infection was all disposed of.

With the business he has been ten years building suddenly wiped out and everything gone, Mr. Sherwood and his family bring home to Eagle Rock in a concrete way the heavy financial loss that is being suffered by dairymen in the effort to stamp out the foot and mouth disease.

A $7500 clubhouse will be built by the La Canada Thursday club within nine months on a lot given the club by Frank Haddock of the Salisbury Manor tract, according to the agreement of acceptance. Over $700 has been pledged by the members of the building fund, to be earned during the summer.

Annual election of officers resulted in the following: President, Mrs. P. H. Johnson; vice-president, Mrs. Harry T. Hayman; recording secretary, Mrs. Nahum A. Maynard; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Victoria Pearson-Rolfe; treasurer, Mrs. George L. Miller; auditor, Mrs. George A. Brigham; directors, Mmes. J. W. Stultz, J. V. Seright, J. N. Scott, E. A. Rantel and Miss L. Eleanor Oliver.

Membership committee members appointed were: Mrs. P. B. Waterman, Mrs. H. L. Cooper, Miss Olive Van Fleet. Previous to the business meeting a luncheon was given in the school dining room. Miss May Young and Mrs. A. W. Lynn, Jr., hostesses. Miss Julia Baughman was the principal speaker at the luncheon and told of some of her experiences in Mexico during the year she spent there, and exhibited several pieces of hand craft made by the natives which she brought home with her as souvenirs.

Last Saturday a cooked food sale was held in the school domestic science room that netted the club building fund $22.05. Similar affairs and entertainments are being planned by the Thursday club to raise money necessary to build the new club house.

PLAN TO MODIFY PLAGUE RULINGS

State Official to Conduct
Survey of Resorts In Southland Region

SACRAMENTO, April 26.—Get business back to normal, was the keynote of a statement by G. H. Hecke, director of the state department of agriculture today. He said: "We will make an immediate investigation of the regulations affecting mountain resorts of Southern California to determine if such regulations may safely be modified. Modifications of the regulations will be made quickly if justified so that no unwarranted hardship will be wrought upon owners of resorts, homes or transportation companies in the Southern California mountain district."

"The United States government at our request has taken complete charge of the work of eradicating the foot and mouth disease and with full co-operation of the state department of agriculture is carrying the work forward effectively."

"We cannot say exactly when any restriction will be lifted, but these which have been forced by hysteria on the part of a section of the public and are not justified by the seriousness of the situation will be immediately lifted."

TUJUNGA CLOSE ROADS IN STOCK EPIDEMIC

Stringent Quarantine Rules
Bar Mountain Canyons
From All Travel

All roads into the canyons and mountains of the Verdugo range have been placed under guard by the county, state and federal authorities in an effort to prevent the hoof and mouth disease from spreading to this area, which has so far escaped the epidemic. Only residents of the quarantined areas are permitted to pass the guards.

Leo L. Lang of Tujunga has been placed in charge of the Verdugo hills quarantine district and has placed fourteen guards at the various roads into the mountains leading from Tujunga, Burbank, La Crescenta, Roscoe, Hansen Heights and Glendale.

No animals or products of any kind, except eggs, may be moved to or from the closed area. This restriction applies to hay, straw, fodder and grain.

All persons other than the owner, his family and employees are forbidden to enter any public or private ranch, farm range or pasture land in or around which any domestic animals are kept, except by special permit. Delivery automobiles make all deliveries at the roadside and must not drive onto the property. Fishing in streams or lakes in the quarantine district is strictly prohibited.

Violation of quarantine regulations is a misdemeanor and is punishable by a fine of not less than $50 nor more than $500, or imprisonment not to exceed six months.

Passes 104th Birthday
Miss Hannah L. McKee of Tujunga was among the many friends to send congratulations to Mrs. Anna Woodward Hakes of Pasadena on the occasion of her 104th birthday, which was celebrated March 26 at the home of Mrs. Hakes' daughter and son-in-law, 98 North El Molino avenue, Pasadena. Mrs. Hakes has not lost her interest in church or state affairs with the advancing years and greatly enjoyed the meeting with old and young friends on her birthday. Many beautiful flowers were sent her and many telegrams were received from friends at distant points. Mrs. Hakes has made her home in Pasadena for several years, coming from Washington, Pa.

A special invitation was issued by the Tujunga Community Church Christian Endeavor society to all members and friends of the church to attend their roller skating party at Alhambra Saturday evening. These roller skating parties have been regular affairs with the society for some time and they have enjoyed them so much that they wish to have all their friends attend.

Realty Sales
Recent sales in property indicate considerable activity in this business, in spite of the business depression some are inclined to expect. Among recent sales are: house and lot on Dyer street purchased by Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Rush from Mrs. Hartt. Mr. Rush is a Glendale barber, and expects to open a shop in Tujunga or La Crescenta. E. Wilson sold a house and lot to Emma Speight in Tujunga. Real estate transfers are very active in both La Crescenta and Montrose and several deals have been completed there involving some high class property. Frank Begue of Tujunga has sold five acres north of Michigan avenue between Ramsdale and Encino streets to Embert M. Brown company and the property is being cleared of brush preparatory to sub-dividing.

CLAIM PRIEST IS 'ROSARY'S' AUTHOR

Father Thos. Whalen Wrote
Words of Loved Song,
Friends Declare

BOULDER, Col., April 26.—The late Father Thomas Whalen of Chicago was the author of the words of "The Rosary," generally credited to Robert Cameron Rogers, friend of Sister Mary Emily of Mt. St. Gertrude academy, a sister of Father Whalen, declared after Sister Mary Emily's funeral.

They said Father Whalen wrote the song while attending a Catholic university at Washington, in memory of his younger sister, who became Sister Mary Camilla, and died at Mt. Carmel, Dubuque, Ia., in 1895. Father Whalen, according to the story, submitted the words anonymously to the Washington Post. Mr. Rogers, they said, clipped the words from the Post and sent them to Nevins, the composer, who fashioned the melody.

Nevins, thinking Rogers the writer, credited him with authorship.

Told Grief In Song
It was while grieving over the death of his sister that the words of "The Rosary," his title being "My Rosary," were written, according to the story here. Father Whalen did not claim

LOS ANGELES, April 26.—Miss Helen Hanes, of Pasadena, lectured Wednesday in the Junior Orpheum building to several hundred librarians who will attend the National Library convention to be held in Pasadena next week. Miss Hanes declared that there is more interest shown by the general public in books at the present time than at any other period of the world's history.

She stated that there are scores of literary journals, devoted to criticism and book reviews where there was one five years ago and that the literary journal is established on a paying basis, while political and commercial magazines are failing.

LABOR ADVOCATES BARRED BY CLUB

Form Exclusive '1900' Club
as Mourning Spot for Defeated Tories

LONDON, April 26.—Because of their sympathy with the Labor government, Lord Chelmsford, secretary of the navy, and Oswald Mosley, a prominent member of Parliament, have been banned by an exclusive Tory club.

The "1900" club was formed after a great Tory defeat in 1906. Composed of the elite of aristocrats, all of the highest blue blood and the most immaculate Tory opinions, it was founded as a place where its members could meet and confide with each other in misfortune.

Old pewter pots, filled with strong ale, and long "churchwarden" pipes were the insignia of its meetings. It has been a mark of real old Tory blue blood

Gives Impression He Will Veto Bonus Bill

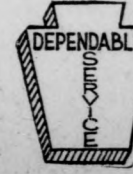

WASHINGTON, April 26.—President Coolidge's opposition to legislation contemplating large federal expenditures was reiterated at the White House yesterday in connection with inquiries concerning his attitude toward the new soldiers bonus bill.

Callers who talked with the president left with the impression that he would veto the bill, despite the overwhelming majority by which it was passed in both houses of congress.

In England to be elected a member.

But one of its rules states that all members of the club must "promote and further generally the interests of the Tory party." And now Lord Chelmsford, former stalwart, has become a minister in a Labor government. Oswald Mosley, truculent son-in-law of Lord Curzon, has become an open sympathizer with Ramsay MacDonald.

So the command has gone forth: "They must go!" And the sentence has been put into immediate execution.
